Adult foster care homes called 'successful'

By BOB AMEEN
ANP Staff Writer

"A highly successful program" is how a top state official in the mental health field described a revolutionary approach to returning thousands of developmentally disabled persons to "normal living."

The last five years has been seen many thousands of such mentally retarded Michigan citizens being taken care of in more than 3,000 adult foster homes, which have sprung up in all areas of the state. Explaining the relatively new program to area communities is David Boyd, facilities development supervisor, Southgate Regional Center, State of Michigan Department of Mental Health. Boyd said he has spent nearly a quarter of a century in the mental health field in efforts to help ease the lives of mentally retarded persons.

The housing of up to six developmentally disabled persons in single-family homes has stirred up controversy in some areas, usually in the neighborhoods where they are to be located.

The communities of Van Buren Township and the City of Romulus are no exception. Protests to locating adult foster care homes recently came strongly from a handful of Romulus residents, nucleus of what they claimed was about a hundred of their neighbors, who had signed a petition against such a home on Tobine Road.

Realizing that such a new concept — attempting to return mentally retarded citizens back to the community on an independently functioning basis — requires a considerable public education effort, Boyd had voluntarily appeared at all types of citizens meetings, ranging from school board sessions to council and township board gatherings to explain the new program.

Boyd is a firm believer that once the general public understands what the new program is, what it is trying to do and how it is trying to do it, then a giant step will have been taken to reduce opposition of local communities.

Boyd said mental health leaders a few years back realized a startling fact — that placing mentally retarded persons in special centers which grew into institutions housing from 500 to 3,000 "patients" was not "normal."

Instead, Boyd explained, it was reasoned that these afflicted individuals should be allowed to live in more normal quarters, such as a single-family residence.

Although adult foster care (AFC) homes vary in looks on the outside, Boyd said, each is designed to provide three bedrooms, two bathrooms, kitchen, living room and family room.

"Some of the adult foster care homes have smoke detectors in every room. Some are built to incorporate a barrier-free design for those individuals who have physical defects," he emphasized.

Barrier-free designed AFCs have door handles that are easy to open and kitchens and bathrooms that cater exclusively to wheelchair victims, Boyd said. Should an existing home be used for an AFC, he said, the difficulty of providing barrier-free design usually excludes them as homes for the physically handicapped.

Boyd and his staff actually work out of an office in Trenton, called Alternate Living Services, which comes under jurisdiction of the Southgate Regional Center, and in turn, the State Department of Mental Health.

He explained that the new AFC concept eliminates the state from purchasing land for the home, building the home and maintaining the home by passing on that function to private citizens who want to invest their money.

"Alternate Living works in 17 downriver communities. It is the responsibility of my staff to work on their own and with realtors to locate appropriate sites for new AFC homes," Boyd said.

He explained that every attempt is made to find home sites that are typically normal — close to shopping centers, schools and other necessities.

"Up to the age of 26, the individuals housed in AFC homes are entitled to an education," he stressed.

Once an AFC home site is located, Alternate Living Services makes a request for an option to buy the land to the State Department of Management and Budget.

After the option to buy the land is obtained, Boyd said, Alternate Living Services advertises for bids by "investors". These investors take blueprints for a proposed AFC home to the Department of Management and Budget and work out how much the state will lease the house for a 20-year period.

If the Detroit office of the Department of Management and Budget approves the lease rate, the next step is for a review in Lansing by the State Administration Board, which must pass on all buildings leased to the State of Michigan, Boyd said.

Approval by that body will send the lease to the state attorney general, whose signature will make the document official and which allows the investor to proceed with construction of the AFC home.

The next step, Boyd explained, is one with which residents of Van Buren and Romulus have become familiar — the investor goes to the city with site plans for the new structure in his efforts to get permission to build a single-family residence in an area zoned for their construction.

Once the city issues a building permit for the AFC home, he said, the investor comes back to Alternate Living Services, which will develop a management corporation whose duty will be to establish a budget to maintain and manage the AFC home.

He said the management corporation, a non-profit group, will have the new home recorded on local tax rolls in the same manner as any other residential structure. The management corporation's budget will include expenses for lease of the home, transportation and insurance, maintenance of all new furniture, food, salaries for direct care staff and maintenance of the home's exterior, including lawns.

Boyd said the management corporation is the only agency which can apply for a license to operate the new home as an AFC residence to the State Department of Social Services. Included in the application, Boyd stressed, are letters of reference and a document attesting to the non-profit status of the management corporation.

Next, the State Bureau of Regulatory Services through communication with the municipality involved must determine that no other AFC home is within 1,500 feet of the proposed location for which a license is being sought, he said.

Boyd said foster care homes for children or homes where only one adult is being cared for do not figure in the 1,500-foot radius.

The state bureau sends a form to the city, which it must fill out and return in 45 days. At that point, Boyd said, the city has the responsibility of informing all residents who live within 1,500 feet of the proposed AFC home and of plans to build it there.

Commenting on news stories in which local residents said it appeared there was no way they could stop building of an AFC home in their area, Boyd said: "There are all kinds of recourse, from seeking legal counsel to contacting local legislators and city officials."

If the Detroit office of the Department of Management and Budget approves the lease rate, the next step is for a review in Lansing by the State Administration Board, which must pass on all buildings leased to the State of Michigan, Boyd said.

Of 25-30 teachers

Romulus schools consider layoffs

By BOB AMEEN
ANP Staff Writer

With an impending teachers strike on the horizon comes word that the Romulus Community Schools will layoff 25 to 30 teachers this month and will increase some class sizes in the wake of continued cash deficits.

Recent word from WC-MEA-NEA Romulus said the school district's teachers would go on strike, if a new contract is not reached by March 9. The union group said economic issues and class size were paramount among differences with the school system.

Friday Marvin P. Fischer, interim superintendent, verified that the school board had approved his recommendation to layoff 10 to 12 secondary teachers, increase the size of general education classes to 30 pupils, and set special academic class size at 20 pupils.

The balance of the 25 to 30 teachers slated for dismissal soon will be elementary instructors, he said.

Fischer said this year's deficit in the school system is close to that of last year when cash shortages were about $350,000.

Saying that the school district had made up some of the deficit, Fischer said it would still end up in the red this school year "whether new teacher contracts are settled or not settled."

He emphasized that the school board now is looking at other programs and activities it may cut to balance the budget for the next school year.

The superintendent said: "There is a distinct possibility of the board asking for more millage."

In addition to the teachers layoffs coming this month, Fischer released a list of 19 teachers and school employees already cut to date in efforts to save $71,596 in funds.

The list showed one teacher at Merriman Elementary who was granted a health leave; one alternative education custodian replaced with part-time substitute; one psychologist laid off; one nurse laid off; two hall monitors laid off; two clerk typists laid off; one alternative education secretary laid off; one speech therapist granted health leave with temporary replacement; two junior high head track coaches eliminated; two junior high assistant track coaches eliminated; one senior high head track coach, combined for boys and girls; one senior high assistant track coach, combined for boys and girls; one junior high counselor transferred to junior high math position; one CETA math specialist reassigned from junior high to senior high math lab; one alternative education teacher granted sabbatical leave.

House panel OK's bill to pay interest on security deposits

A State House committee has approved legislation to require the payment of interest on security deposits held by landlords.

House Bill 4037, which received bipartisan support in the House Consumers Committee, would require an interest payment of 5 percent per year at the termination of the tenant's occupancy.

"Damage deposits are not rent payments," said the bill's sponsor, State Rep. Perry Bullard (D-Ann Arbor). "They remain the property of the tenant, and the value of this property, including interest, should be returned to the tenant when the tenant moves."

Under provisions of the bill, the security deposit would earn interest at the rate of 5 percent per year. At the time tenancy is completed, the tenant would receive a payment from the landlord for the difference between the damages claimed and the amount of the security deposit, together with the deposit's total accumulated interest. After three years in the same location, tenants would be entitled to annual interest payments.

Bullard said that he hopes to improve the bill on the House floor, or in the Senate, by requiring a floating interest rate which would keep payments in line with inflation and steadily rising interest rates.

"With the rate of inflation steadily rising, and no relief in sight, a sliding scale on interest payments is absolutely necessary to prevent the amount of interest paid quickly becoming obsolete," said the Ann Arbor Democrat.

"The security deposit amount in Michigan can be as high as 1½ times the monthly rent charged," Bullard said. "A tenant who pays rent of $300 per month may have to pay a security deposit of $450. Over a period of three years, the tenant could lose $150 of actual buying power due to the effects of inflation."

"Inflationary losses would multiply greatly if the tenant remained in the same residence for a longer period of time. Families who rent homes most certainly experience even greater loss of purchasing power over a span of several years."

Bullard added that he might work to further strengthen the bill by adding amendments which would provide for interest on deposits for pets, rental furniture or other deposits which landlords might require in the future.

"I understand," said Bullard, "that some landlords in Michigan have begun the practice of requiring additional deposits on such items."

Like security deposits, these extra damage deposits are the property of the tenant, and any money earned on them belongs to the tenant as well."

At least 10 other states, including Illinois and Ohio, have laws on the books providing for interest on security deposits. These laws have been in effect for four or more years, and have had only positive effects, Bullard said.

Know your laws

(This is one in a series of public service articles explaining, in general terms, a provision of Michigan law. Individuals who wish to determine the effect of any law on their private legal affairs should consult with a private attorney.)

By ATT. GEN. FRANK KELLEY

Do patients have the right to obtain medical records from their doctor's or hospital's files?

This question is raised more frequently as the cost of health care skyrockets and patients become more aware of their rights.

Under Michigan law, patients of hospitals, institutions and private physicians have the right to see and obtain copies of their medical records.

The legislature included a "Patient Bill of Rights" in Michigan's new Public Health Code which covers nursing homes, homes for the elderly and similar facilities.

This law allows patients to inspect their medical records or receive copies for a reasonable fee.

The law enables physicians to use their discretion about what forms to use, information to be recorded and how long the records are to be kept.

For mental patients, the law is a little different.

It allows the doctor or hospital to withhold the record, if such information would be detrimental to the patient or others involved.

To obtain access to medical records, three steps are advised. First, the patient must allow enough time after making the request. The physical or health care facility must have sufficient time to assemble and copy the records.

Second, the patient must be prepared to pay a reasonable fee to cover the cost of assembling and reproducing the records. X-rays require special equipment and extra cost.

Third, if the patient wants to look at the records — without getting copies — he or she must make arrangements in advance, to review them during normal business hours.

A doctor's refusal to provide medical records usually is a private matter to be discussed on an individual basis, or with the help of a private attorney.

When the AFC home is 100 percent finished, the DSS, state fire marshal's office and the Department of Public Health make a final inspection.

"At this time, all items must be in place, from dishes in the cupboards to sheets on the beds," he pointed out.

After recommendation by its consultant for a license, the DSS will issue a license to the AFC home. Only when the license has been posted on the premises, he said, can developmentally disabled persons be brought in for care.

Opening of the new AFC home also is dependent upon approval of Department of Public Health, he added. At this point, the AFC home is eligible for matched funding of daily operations, 50 percent from the Department of Mental Health and 50 percent from the federal government, he said.

Boyd said the amount of money paid for daily operation will vary from one AFC home to another, depending on the type of individuals housed there and the kind of staff needed to care for them.

Further explaining the AFC home procedure, Boyd said investors who put up money for the home's construction will get a return on their investment in the same way that money collects interest in the bank or renting or leasing a home to their neighbor.

But, he added, by negotiating a rate of return with the Department of Management and Budget, the investor avoids losing the "fluidness" of typing up money in banks or in risky real estate dealings. He denied strongly that AFC homes are big money-making schemes.

Another point which needs clarification, Boyd said, is the type of persons who will be housed in AFC homes. Ridiculing charges that some cared-for persons border on the criminally insane, he explained that all of them have basic life care skills in varying degrees. These include such skills as brushing their teeth and keeping themselves clean.

Some of the housed persons also are physically handicapped, but men and women are not mixed in any AFC home, he said.

"They're either all men or all women," Boyd declared.

He denied another accusation that Northville State Hospital is being phased out and that patients there are being farmed out to AFC homes in the area. "I never made that statement," he declared.

Instead, Boyd explained, AFC occupants are put into two programs — one which gives them an education if under 26, and a second which provides work.

"All of them either work or go to school," said Boyd, "and when they are taken out for recreation after work, or for therapy, it's always under supervision."

He said that on the average, an AFC home has 6½ full-time, and some part-time staff members who work under a 3-shift program that changes every eight hours.

"But," he stressed, "there is someone on duty in the house at all times."

Included in the AFC staff is a registered nurse, on duty mostly in daytime hours, a dietician and a staff psychologist who examines and adjusts a specialized program for each AFC occupant once each month, he noted.

As he explains on countless occasions in appearances before every conceivable type of community gathering, Boyd puts special emphasis on the end result, or the goal of the state's AFC program. That, he said, is to return as many AFC residents back to the community as possible.

This is done in two more steps — to move individuals from AFC homes to "semi-independent apartment living", but under less supervision; next, to move them to their own apartment in the community when they have shown they are capable of taking care of themselves.

Council appoints DeBuysscher acting assessor

By BOB AMEEN
ANP Staff Writer

Joe Lynn DeBuysscher last Tuesday was appointed interim city assessor by the Romulus City Council.

DeBuysscher, who worked as a level 3 assessor in the assessor's office, will replace Dave Krause, city assessor, who resigned Feb. 13 to accept a job with a Livonia firm.

The board voted 5-0 for DeBuysscher's appointment, with council members Ray Cantrell and Ed Rush absent.

About the time that Krause submitted his resignation, Treasurer Beverly McNally revealed that the assessor had failed to notify her of the city's tentative new property equalization factor which he had received from Wayne County. (A larger equalization factor would increase taxes for city residents.)

She said Krause had received notice from the county in December that the equalization factor had been increased six percent. She said the lack of communication between the assessor's office and hers supported her contention that the assessor should work under the treasurer's office. In past practice, the city assessor has traditionally been appointed by the mayor and reported directly to him.

McNally said the city charter is clear in stipulating that the assessor should work under the treasurer, one of whose primary functions is the collecting of city taxes.

She said she found out about the tentative new equalization factor in a casual conversation with DeBuysscher about the time of Krause's resignation.

Following announcement of the city's tentative equalization factor, council supported a motion by Councilman Ed Rush to protest the matter to the county Bureau of Taxation.

Rush charged the county was trying to artificially inflate property assessments to generate additional revenue to bail itself out of its current financial predicament.

George McEachern, director of the Bureau of Taxation, verified that tentative property equalization factors are sent out to county communities in December. After study and analysis of changes in assessments sent in by local boards of review, a final property equalization factor is set for each community by his bureau in the third week of April, he explained.

Softball for girls planned

If enough volunteer help steps forward, the Romulus Parks and Recreation Department will field two girls' softball leagues this summer.

The leagues are for girls ages 9 to 12, and for 13- to 17-year-olds.

"We need volunteers to coach and keep score," said Dennis Davidson, parks and recreation director. "The recreation department will organize a clinic in order to train all volunteer scorekeepers."

There'll be a registration fee of $5 for each player. The money will go toward purchasing bats, balls, equipment and pay umpires' fees.

Registration will be held from 10 a.m. to 12 noon on April 12 at the Recreation Building, 36515 Bibbins. All those interested in playing this summer in any of the leagues should register.

Any person who is interested in volunteering their time may check in on registration day, or telephone the recreation department at 941-0666, ext. 254.

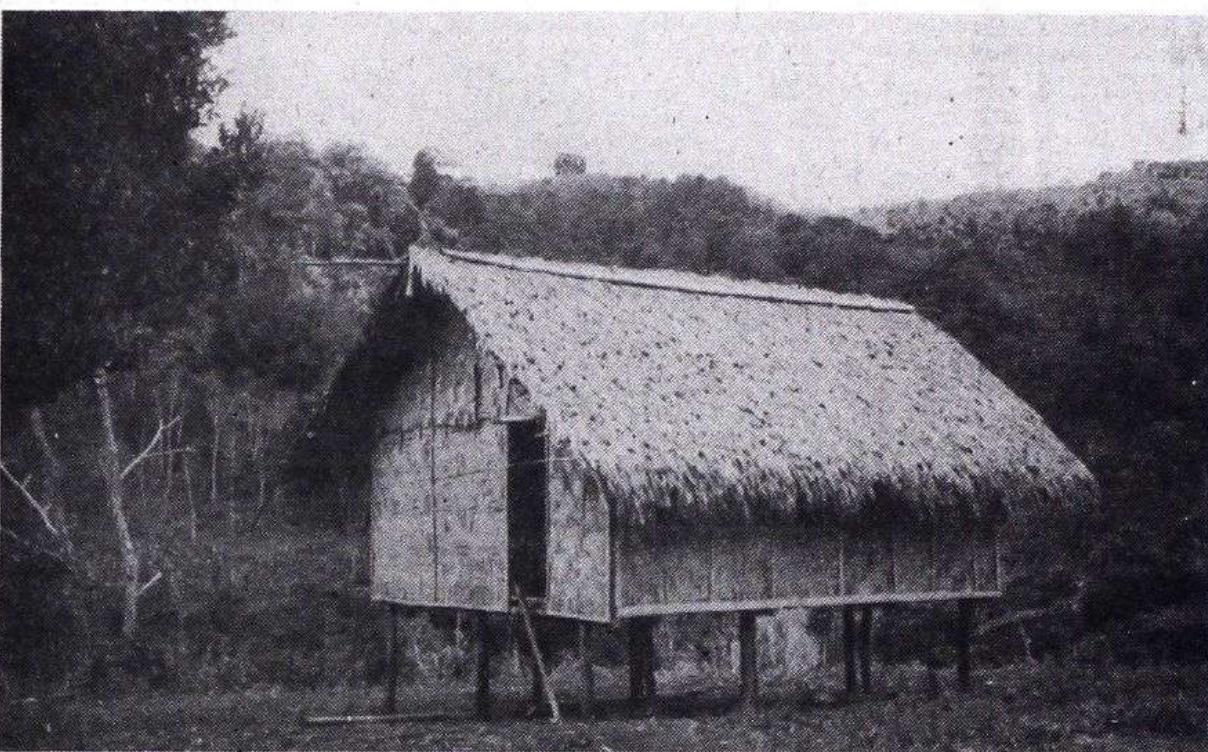

The recreation department also is seeking a few more teams to complete in Women's Slow-Pitch Softball League.

The league is designed for players 18 years old and up. If you're interested in competing, please contact the parks and recreation department at 941-0666, ext. 254.

In New Guinea

For William Smith, community education director for the Romulus Community Schools, a visit to Australia, New Guinea and New Zealand was a dream come true. In his visit to New Guinea, Smith rafted the Watut River (below), during which stops were made at villages along the river banks. Nestled in the dense jungle growth were villages of thatched huts, many of which provided accommodations for the travelers. The huts (above) were built on poles to discourage visits by rodents and reptiles, as well as to promote ventilation.

'Me tisa long America' Romulus educator tours New Guinea

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following story was written by William R. Smith, community education director for the Romulus Community Schools. Smith, while on a leave of absence, travelled to Australia for the Third International Community Education Conference last year, as well as visited Papua, New Guinea, and New Zealand, at his own expense. The story is his observations of the life style of New Guinea.

By WILLIAM R. SMITH

For years I had dreamed of traveling into remote areas of the world. When presented with an opportunity to visit New Guinea, an island north of Australia, I eagerly accepted. From all reports Papua, New Guinea, was a primitive and beautiful country, one of the last unexplored frontiers.

To prepare for the trip, I studied the language of New Guinea, Pidgin English. I mastered several helpful phrases: "Wanem mem bilong dispela ples?" (What is the name of this village?); "Nem bilong me Bill." (My name is Bill.); and a phrase which especially excited children. "Me tisa long America." (I am a teacher in America.)

The first part of the New Guinea expedition was a 6-day rafting trip on the Watut River. An American travel company had arranged the adventure, and we used sturdy rubber rafts similar to those used to navigate the Grand Canyon. The Watut River, however, was vastly different than any river in the United States. Dense jungle lined the Watut's banks as it flowed from central mountains to the Pacific Ocean. Unusual birds, insects and animals inhabited the river terrain, creating eerie sounds reminiscent of a Tarzan movie. Primitive villages were sporadically located along the river and our group of 14 was viewed with friendly curiosity by local villagers.

A memorable moment for me occurred as we visited our first village, named Taylk. Anxious to try newly acquired language, I introduced myself and added, "Me tisa long America." Immediately a large group of children gathered around, and I began to show them pictures of Romulus school children. In turn, they invited me to visit a thatched, bamboo hut which served as their school house. Language skills and simple math were being taught by a young adult who had been educated by missionaries. Later I would discover that Tayek was one of the few villages to organize a school and, in most villages, children did not receive any formal education.

Another significant aspect of New Guinea was the friendliness of the people. Prior to my trip, several well-meaning friends reminded me of the country's reputation for cannibalism. In 1961, the mysterious disappearance of Michael Rockefeller heightened speculation that cannibalism still was being practiced in New Guinea. My contact with villagers, however, was positive in every respect. Whenever visiting a village, people would offer us a "kiop" (guest hut), water, fruit and vegetables. Temperatures often would approach 100 degrees on the river, and it was special treat to receive fresh pineapples, papayas, oranges and coconuts after a long day of rafting. Based on my experiences, I doubt if cannibalism still exists in New Guinea.

From a scenic standpoint, one image stands out. As our rafts rounded a bend in the river, everyone's gaze was diverted downstream. Standing out against the green, jungled background was a suspension bridge constructed of bamboo and vines. Suspended about 25 feet above water, the bridge offered a challenge we couldn't refuse. One by one we inched our way across, stepping lightly on bamboo supports as the bridge swayed from side to side.

Included in my New Guinea plans was a week-long backpacking trip on the Kokoda Trail, a treacherous mountain footpath made famous during World War II. It was along the trail that Australian and U. S. resistance finally halted the Japanese advance to Gen. McArthur's headquarters in Port Moresby. Fierce fighting claimed tremendous casualties on both sides. Other soldiers fell prey to malaria, dysentery, tropical ulcers and related jungle hardships.

Before starting the hike, I recalled a warning I had read regarding its difficulty. "The rigors of the Kokoda Trail cannot be exaggerated." I hoped that three months of hard exercise and running would be sufficient training for the 60-mile track. A cross section of the route looked like a roller coaster ride — 20,000 feet of altitude would be gained and lost during the 7-day trip.

Fortunately, I would not have to hike alone. Another American from the rafting trip decided to join me. As we registered our departure with proper authorities, they assured us that search parties would be organized, if we were 24 hours overdue.

Our first day of hiking was difficult, but an ideal campsite near a stream lessened our discomfort. Nearby we watched two tree kangaroos playfully hopping through dense undergrowth. As darkness engulfed our campsite the sounds of the rain forest came alive. More than anything, these strange but beautiful noises reminded me that I was in a totally foreign environment. As I settled back to sleep, I couldn't help wondering how many eyes were watching us.

Day 2 will be remembered as the most physically demanding day of my life. The trail was hard to follow and often nearly vertical. Temperature and humidity were unbearably high and drinking water was scarce. Ten hours of hiking ended at dusk as we literally stumbled into a tiny village.

A pivotal event marked our third day on the trail. Several times we nearly lost the faint pathway as our map proved less than adequate. Weariness hampered us and our morale was beginning to suffer. We stopped at another village in early afternoon, dissatisfied with our progress. A villager greeted us with even more bad news. We had followed the wrong trail and were now six hours out of our way.

Our hopes of completing the Kokoda Trail were nearly gone. To extend the hike would jeopardize further travel arrangements. We were determined, however, to complete half of the trail and resumed hiking with that goal in mind. We hoped to fly out from a jungle airstrip often used for missionary purposes.

Another 1½ days of hiking brought us to the village of Kagi and, more importantly, its grass landing strip. A missionary was arriving in the morning and we would be able to hitch a ride on the return flight. It would be a memorable take-off since the grass strip was built on an incline.

The plane arrived on schedule in the morning, and as we taxied downhill, I felt a sense of relief combined with sadness. Long days of hiking and exhaustion were behind me but my goal of completing the entire trail would remain unfulfilled. Still I had seen and experienced Papua New Guinea in a way that few people would ever know, and for that I could be thankful.

Participating students will be given pledge sheets and will be collecting pledges from residents of the community. Donations will be a designated sum of money for each hour the students spends dancing or rocking.

The dance will be open to spectators for a minimum $5 donation.

For further information on the event, contact Beth Clark at 728-6078, or the high school at 941-2170.

Things that matter

How we treat the aging

By GEORGE PLAGENZ
United Feature Syndicate

The Eskimos' ways of treating their old and dying (until very recent times) shock us.

An Eskimo tribe would take an aged person along on a fishing expedition, leave him on an ice floe while the tribe went off to fish, and then forget to come back for him.

Or they would put him in an igloo and shut up all the openings. He would die of the cold and suffocation.

While this horrifies us, are we even crueler to our elderly by relegating them to nursing homes?

Separation of people by age has been called "one of the most vicious forms of segregation in our society."

Is it true, as an author maintained recently in a denominational magazine, that "Christianity demands that we keep the elderly in the family home except under the most extraordinary circumstances"?

Many people think so. They feel it is better for an old person to receive less professional family attention at home than to receive the best of attention in a nursing home.

The culprits, as far as these people are concerned, are not the nursing homes but the middle-aged children who jettison their elderly parents for the sake of greater mobility and convenience.

A Protestant minister who visits nursing homes several times a week says that "being with one's family even under adverse circumstances would be much better than being confined in a nursing home."

He regards the uniform programs, routines and procedures in nursing homes as depersonalizing. The atmosphere of the average nursing home, he has found, causes rapid decline in the physical and emotional condition of the elderly residents.

This is not to say that a case cannot be made for the middle-aged children who send their parents to a nursing home.

Many a chronically ill person causes stresses and tensions which could have a harmful effect upon a family. Isn't it unfair to expect the sons and daughters of the aged to "jump to the tune" of an elderly parent who is becoming more demanding and critical?

Another clergyman says, "It has been my experience in the parish ministry that most persons in nursing homes are in such a physical or mental condition that it would be unreasonable to expect any family to provide them with adequate care and attention."

A Lutheran chaplain who visits 30 nursing homes in Ohio may best sum up the situation when he says,

"There are a lot of people in nursing homes who shouldn't be there — and a lot who should be there."

"Dumping" unwanted old people in nursing homes is not as common as many people think, he says.

"It kills your pocketbook to put someone in a nursing home today," he says. "Most people can't do it just because it would be more convenient. The cost is too prohibitive."

Rather than bringing nursing home patients back to their homes, he would like to see more volunteers — from churches, for example — come to visit them in the nursing homes.

"But outside of the family, people are slow to visit nursing home patients," he says.

Many of the clergymen I have talked with are sympathetic with families who find it difficult to keep old people at home. They are willing to concede that a lot of old people are ornery and hard to live with.

Nursing home administrators reject the idea that most nursing home patients have been "dumped" there.

"Our patients are not ignored by their families," says one administrator. "They visit them and take them for rides and outings. There is a woman here whose son takes her fishing every week in the summer."

The fact that many more women are working today means that no one may be at home to care for the elderly person in many instances. In other cases, the old people can't stand the noise of the family's teenagers and their friends. Or they are shoved off into one room, shut off from the life of the family.

Under any of these circumstances, a nursing home seems to be the best answer from everybody's point of view.

And contrary to what many say, the elderly often are happier in a

Everyone needs a cute and cuddly bunny in their life, but Gwenda Pheil of Westland wasn't counting on a rabbit that was bigger than herself. The youngster, the daughter of Richard and Marlea Pheil, was introduced to the bunny at Associated Newspapers, which is

During 1980s

Economy will be sluggish

The slow growth of the U.S. gross national product (GNP) will cause increased unemployment in 1980, says a Michigan State University agricultural economist.

Lester Manderscheid says real GNP — the measure of the nation's economic output after correcting for the impact of inflation on dollar values — will be about the same in 1980 as it was in 1979. Unemployment will rise from its current level of 6 percent to 7.5 percent by the end of 1980, he predicted.

"Even with some increase in the GNP in the second half of 1980, unemployment probably will not decline until well into 1981," he said. "The unemployment rate reflects employers' reluctance to hire workers until they are certain employees won't shortly have to receive unemployment compensation."

Inflation will continue in 1980, Manderscheid said, though the inflation rate may drop slightly to about 10 percent as measured by the Consumer Price Index. This is the measure of the cost of living for a typical urban household. It is figured by comparing today's prices of some basic household purchases with the cost of the same goods and services in 1967.

The Federal Reserve Board's policy of restraining growth in the money supply, allowing interest rates to rise and limiting credit availability, is expected to continue into 1980. Short-term interest rates will remain relatively high through early 1980, and long-term interest rates will continue near current levels until investors and the Federal Reserve Board are convinced that inflation has been brought under control, Manderscheid said.

"High interest rates and slowed economic activity will significantly reduce how much consumers spend on durable goods and housing," he predicted. "Residential construction will be down 20 percent and production of consumer durable goods will be down 4 to 5 percent. Automobile production may be decreased by as much as 12 percent."

Manderscheid expects the federal government to spend $50 billion more in both 1980 and 1981 than it did in 1979. The nation's slow GNP growth rate will not keep up with the increase in expenditures. The federal deficit will increase from about $11 billion in 1979 to about $22 billion in fiscal 1980 and $37 billion in 1981, he said.

For his 1980 projections, Manderscheid assumes that weather conditions will be normal. He points out that poor weather and poor harvests in 1980 would increase prices and would affect government policies, the inflation forecast and the GNP. He also assumes supplies of oil from the Middle East will continue to flow to the rest of the world.

"Oil prices may increase to about $32 per barrel by mid-1980," he added. "Assuming a windfall profit tax on the oil industry is passed, decontrol of domestic crude oil prices will allow domestic prices to average near $22 per barrel in mid-1980 and to be close to the world level of $32 by mid-1981. More rapid oil price increases would further dampen GNP growth, increasing prices even more."

The average income for each employed person will be up by 1 percent during the 1980s, Manderscheid projected. Total income per person is increasing less rapidly than it did during the 1950s and '60s, despite the productivity increase related to more education, including fewer hours worked, and safety and environmental constraints. Manderscheid predicted that the nation's real GNP will grow by about 1 percent per year during the 1980s, a rate slower than the GNP growth of the 1950s and '60s.

He assumes there will be no major war and no major change in government policies, since major wars, natural catastrophes or significant shifts in political and economic attitudes could alter his projections.

Manderscheid emphasized that inflation declines slowly in the United States because the federal government rarely is involved in labor contract negotiations and has difficulty reducing wages and costs quickly.

"The rate of price increase probably will be substantially higher in the 1980s than it was in the 1950s, '60s or '70s," he explained. "Whether inflation is double-digit or gradually reduced to 2 or 3 percent over the decade will depend on decisions made by the American public."

Several trends during the previous two decades have contributed to the current state of the economy. Manderscheid explained that the escalation of the Vietnam War in the early 1960s, accompanied by a decision to finance the war without substantial tax increases, built inflationary pressures not observed until the late 1960s.

"The 1970s were marked by the creation of the OPEC cartel and rapid increases in oil prices," he said. "We saw an end to U.S. surplus food stocks and higher farm and food prices compared to the 1960s. Increased governmental regulations to control environmental pollution and hazards in the workplace also imposed costs on the economy."

St. Joe's to sponsor community health day

Whether it's the "empty nest" syndrome of middle age, or the identity crisis of the teen years, every stage of life has its own particular mental health perils, a fact that will be explored by four psychiatrists at a Community Health Day March 18 at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital's Education Center in Ann Arbor.

"Community Health Day is open to the public at no charge," said Psychiatrist William H. Hewes, director of the division of medical education at Ypsilanti Regional Psychiatric Hospital. "We encourage people to attend, listen to the presentations, and participate in the question-and-answer periods."

Dr. Hewes will serve as moderator for the psychiatric panel assembled for an afternoon program devoted to mental health promotion. A panel discussion by experts in the area of physical health promotion will comprise the morning program.

The public is invited to attend both programs, which begin at 9:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. respectively.

The mental health panel will be composed by Dr. Elissa Benedek, clinical associate professor, department of psychiatry, University of Michigan; Dr. Philip Huizenga, supervisor of psychotherapy, residency training program, Ypsilanti Regional Psychiatric Hospital; and Dr. Philip Margolis, professor of psychiatry and community mental health, and director, medical student education, U-M department of psychiatry.

Further information about Community Health Day at the St. Joseph Mercy Hospital Education Center may be obtained by calling 573-4000. The event is sponsored by the St. Joseph Mercy Hospital Medical Auxiliary and the Washtenaw County Medical Auxiliary.

St. Joseph Mercy Hospital is a unit of the Catherine McAuley Health Center, formed last summer, as are Mercywood Neuro-Psychiatric Hospital and the Maple Medical Center.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 5
Read 2 Timothy 1:1-7

"God did not give us a spirit of timidity but a spirit of power and love and self-control." (2 Timothy 1:7 RSV)

Fear and anxiety are what usually keep us from becoming the best of whatever talent God has given us. As coach of the Dallas cowboys, I try to instill in our players a positive attitude to fulfill the great potential that is theirs.

The Bible tells us that we can do all things through Christ who strengthens us, and also that with God all things are possible. As in every area of life, when athletes approach their sport with confidence in these affirmations, they will do the very best they can.

The tremendous value of being a Christian athlete is that you have the opportunity to reach your full potential because God will help you eliminate these fears and anxieties. Jesus has promised us the Holy Spirit, and as we grow near to Him we become aware of the power that is ever available.

Love enables us to operate in a team spirit with maximum effectiveness, for love gives us a great respect for each other and a concern for the needs of all.

PRAYER: Our Father, keep us aware that we can do all things through Christ, who strengthens us. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY: God doesn't interfere; He gives us courage to excel!

WCGH is accredited

Wayne County General Hospital has been granted a 2-year accreditation by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals, a Chicago-based organization that evaluates hospitals to insure compliance with its standards.

"The hospital passed with flying colors," said a hospital spokesperson, who emphasized that Wayne County General was given full accreditation for the longest period of time usually given, two years.

The joint commission informed Wayne County General executive administrator E. J. Conklin, MD., of the accreditation status in a letter in late November, and noted that the hospital is in "substantial compliance with our standards."

"The recent survey of your hospital commends your effort toward providing patient care of quality," the letter added.

Wayne County General Hospital spokesperson noted, with an eye toward the budgetary crisis in the county and layoffs, that "if hospital service had to be curtailed or eliminated it would make it difficult for the people we serve," not only in-patient care, but an extremely large number of out-patients.

Special WSU ceremony honors Congressman Ford

Wayne State University has honored Congressman William D. Ford (D-15th District) at a special commencement exercise held Monday in the Rayburn Office Building in Washington, D.C.

The honorary Doctor of Laws degree originally was to be awarded to the congressman at commencement ceremonies Dec. 18 at Cobo Hall in Detroit. Ford, however, was unable to attend because of the impending Chrysler Corp. legislation that was then before the House of Representatives.

In announcing the unique Washington ceremony, WSU President Thomas N. Bonner said that Congressman Ford is being cited by Wayne State University in recognition of his "distinguished achievements, leadership and sincere ideals. His concern and support of education, and in particular urban higher education, has marked him as a national leader."

A native of Detroit a former student at Wayne State, Ford, a Democrat, currently is serving his eighth consecutive term representing Michigan's 15th Congressional District. Among his many leadership positions in Congress, he is a senior member of the House Committee on Education and Labor, and serves as chairman of the Subcommittee on Post-secondary Education.

He co-sponsored the landmark Higher Education Act of 1965 and the federal Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965. Ford also was responsible for the Middle Income Student Assistant Act of 1978 and the Urban Grant University Act, proposed as a new Title XI to the Higher Education Act reauthorization of 1980.

March skies sparkle

In March, late winter skies sparkle with one of the most familiar of all star groupings, the constellation of Orion, the Great Hunter, says University of Michigan astronomy professor Richard G. Teske.

"Orion is high in the southern sky after dark," Teske noted. "In the upper left corner of the constellation is the red supergiant star Betelgeuse, marking the Hunter's shoulder. A variable star which undergoes irregular changes in its size and brightness, Betelgeuse is now a little brighter than usual."

At Orion's right foot is the blue supergiant Rigel, the sixth brightest star in earth's sky even though it is one of the most distant of the naked-eye stars, he said. Crossing Orion's body are the three stars of his belt and pointing downwards from them are three more stars that make up his sword.

The middle star of the sword, appearing somewhat fuzzy and indistinct, is the great Orion Nebula. Easily visible as a hazy patch of light in binoculars or a small telescope, it is a cloud of rarefied gases that spreads out across space in the Orion area, he explained.

"After the moon," he added, "the great nebula is perhaps the single object most photographed by amateur astronomers and one of the best-studied regions of space."

At the heart of the nebula is its powerhouse, a compact group of stars called the Trapezium. These stars emit ultraviolet light that causes a greenish glow in the nebular gas surrounding them, Teske pointed out.

"The bright, central portion of the nebula that the Trapezium stars illuminate seems about half the size of the full moon, but it is really about six light years across," he added. "Photographs show that fainter portions extend several hundred light years to cover nearly the entire constellation."

The U-M astronomer said the Trapezium stars at the nebula's center are very young — "early cave dwellers gazing in the direction of Orion would not have seen the middle star of the sword, or the nebula either, for they had not begun to shine 25,000 years ago."

Astronomers have discovered still another giant cloud behind the visible part of the nebula. It contains a large amount of molecules of various kinds, such as formaldehyde, hydrogen cyanide and carbon monoxide.

"The molecules in this second cloud have been identified by detecting the characteristic radio wavelengths that they emit in space. The cloud has been mapped by observing it with radio telescopes at these wavelengths," Teske explained.

The Other Side of the Meridian

News stories & deception

By TOM MOORADIAN
Acting Managing Editor

Strange that a bit of fiction continues to haunt me, even after all these weeks.
But it does.

Ironically, I probably owe my newly-bestowed title to the story about all the evils of a politician who dares serve the public while he's in office in the dual role of managing a local newspaper in his district.

However, because I'm a newspaper man who believes in listening and presenting both sides before copy is written, and because I believe an injustice was done to the politician and my staff, may I offer our readers a second view for consideration.

True, a politician elected to office should keep his campaign promises. And anyone involved in the political campaigns in this country realizes that a politician's litany is composed of promises and promises and promises. Like a magnet, those seeking elected offices hope to draw votes because of what they promise: they promise more jobs, promise to cut taxes, promise to balance the budget. They'll promise almost anything.

And if only one-quarter of the politicians elected to office were able to carry out an iota of their promises, this country and the world would be a better place to live.
Unfortunately, we all know that that isn't so.

That doesn't mean however, that politicians should not strive to fulfill their campaign promises. Voters today are more sophisticated. They are beginning to recognize the phony for what he or she is — and they're turning themselves off to them.

Subsequently, when a rare talent is found — a young man who can show himself to be concerned with the problems of his community, his citizens, a man who is trying to solve some of the problems which have plagued our society, such as unemployment and help for our seniors, should we not offer him an opportunity to use the newspaper or newspapers as a vehicle to accomplish those ends?

What better man could one find to lead a newspaper than one who knows the ins-and-outs of government, who knows first hand and through experience what needs to be said and done to accomplish a goal.

The fragile argument that such a man would be selective, biased and refuse "to give the story to a competitive newspaper" is just that, fragile.

If Phil Power, the publisher of The Observer Newspapers, had been elected as U.S. Senator, would he have kept stories from us? Would he have been discriminate and offered "the scoops" to his people first? We believe not.

To stay in office, an elected official must reach as many voters in his district as possible. He can't afford "bad press." He can be destroyed by it. There are too numerous examples of what has happened to politicians who didn't heed this practice. It is a hideous fruit, unfortunately, that all elected officials must bite. Appease the press, or else!

And it makes me wince sometimes to think what we in this profession have the power to do. We do have the power to create and destroy.

I remember what one cop told me a long, long time ago. "You must remember one thing when you go through those files," the officer said as he handed me a stack of preliminary police reports. "As a police officer, I can jail a person and, in time, he may be released. But once you write a story, you can ruin his reputation for life."

Although news people are a ferociously competitive breed, like a proprietary hen we like to protect our own. However, sometimes we're too busy to get "all of the facts."

If my colleagues would have said that politicians should not become managing editors because they would soon become overworked, I could buy that.

If they wrote that he would be underpaid — I could buy that, too.

And understaffed.
Right on.

But, to say that a politician made a promise ... that's the strangest thing that I have heard in these parts for a long time.

A tragedy: cutting beds at hospital

The plea was an urgent one — one that would determine the life or death of the telephone caller's father.

The caller said: "My father has suffered a stroke. He's in the emergency room. The doctors here say that they have no empty beds, so we'll have to move him. I've phoned two other hospitals and they also have informed me that they have no room for the patient."

"Are they going to let him die?"

Incredible!!

But true: After a few phone calls and some dialogue with hospital officials, the power of the press prevailed. The victim was admitted and fortunately he is alive today.

But isn't everyone who knows a newspaper editor. What about them? What will happen the next time?

Bed-cutting to trim hospital budgets because of what officials argue "the horrendous rise in hospital costs" has erupted into a state-wide controversy. There is no solution in sight.

Health care costs have spiraled in recent years, just like everything else. To adjust to inflationary pressures, hospitals have made economic adjustments. And bed-cutting is one major prescription, they hope, that will cure the ailment.

A recent study showed that there are roughly 20,000 hospital beds in Southeastern Michigan and that about 2,500 to 3,000 of those will be axed.

Obviously, this means doctors will keep patients in the hospital for lesser periods and-or the lines in waiting rooms will be getting longer than they presently are. And they are long enough now.

Certainly, no one will argue that hospitals must make money in order to keep their doors open.

And, few will argue that socialized medicine which has produced longer lines to see doctors, also is no solution.

But cutting back on beds isn't, either.

Ask the man whose father suffered a stroke. He'll tell you how helpless he felt during the crisis.

We need to throw our entire energies into this one to come up with a solution. The next person who may be refused admittance into a hospital because there are no empty beds could be you.

Suddenly, it's winter

For awhile, Mother Nature and her staff — Jack Frost and Old Man Winter — appeared to have taken a year off at best. At worst, they were going through some sort of identity crisis. Oh, with their furtive whisperings they assured us that they were around — the ice-covered panes on windows and windshields, the lamentations of the shivering populace.

But, in all, Mother Nature looked as if she was ready to give her believers a stay of execution. She dispatched Winter, it appeared, South. And we enjoyed it.

Only the skiers wailed and moaned. Their logic that winter was created for them is understandable. Their manic flights to the ski slopes had to be postponed and, while the owners of the ski resorts sweated, we basked in Mother Nature's reprieve.

Then, with the sudden flip of a calendar's page, March appeared.

And Spring.

Right?

Wrong.

We lovers of the sun and its warmth were naive enough to think that we would soon be able to cast off our heavy overcoats, toss our gloves to the winds and enjoy an early spring.

Instead, we got a blast of arctic air that sent chills up our spine. It just goes to show that Mother Nature is as fickle as the Ayatollah Khomeini.

Someone should get it across to her that this was no way to start the month of March.

More about mobile homes

By CeJAY MARSHALL
President - Holiday Estates
Mobile Homeowners' Association &
Chairman - Metro Area Council of Mobile Homeowners' Associations

Unfortunately, the editorial reviewing H.B. 5247, which was introduced by State Representative Thomas Brown, and the corresponding S.B. 900 proposed by Senate Majority Leader William Faust, was obviously given very little objective consideration from the ANP Staff.

I have attended public hearings locally and also in Lansing and I have heard the resounding support of hundreds of mobile home park residents who have adamantly endorsed and pleaded for the urgent necessity of adoption of this legislation. And in contrast to the editorial, "Mobile Homeowners in Michigan are finally getting some help in their long battle to improve living conditions and to resist harassment from a few unscrupulous mobile home park owners," you may be assured that there are more than just a few unscrupulous park owners.

Because the initial outburst of criminal charges against Sheldon Futernicks' Village of Homes Mobile Home Sales, Westland, and the subsequent investigation of conditions in Nationwide Parks (Highland Hills — Highland, Royal Holiday and Holiday Estates — Canton, Holiday Woods and Holiday West — Sumpter) convinced others to speak out and make the press and the public aware of the plight of mobile home park tenants, only then began a series of inquiries throughout other mobile home communities within Michigan.

The facts uphold our criticism of the Michigan Mobile Home Commission, and the negative attitudes of local municipalities with regard to the enforcement of P.A. 419 (The Mobile Home Act). I believe it is in the interest of the general public to expose those who would abuse the consumers' trust and create an illusion of "easy living" in mobile home parks. It is our objective to convince Lansing that our rights have been violated and our privileges have been denied and seriously neglected by those responsible (elected and appointed) officials in local and state government.

At the present, public opposition to H.B. 5247 is limited to the Michigan Mobile Home Commission, one mobile home park owner, and Associated Newspapers. The results of public hearings thoroughly substantiate the need for this legislation and because of the existing monopolistic conditions within the market it is indeed justified. If anything will encourage the mobile home condominium concept this law would.

The public must be warned and discouraged from purchasing mobile homes in Michigan. The mobile home alternative style of living is a serious threat to the health and well-being of all citizens.

If the Attorney General would undertake an investigation of the industry perhaps we would discover why the Commerce Department is covering up for Mr. Futernick.

Why isn't the Michigan Mobile Home Commission empowered to impose severe punishment and-or fines on those businesses that would abuse the privilege of serving the public.

It might even be disclosed that the banking institutions, insurance companies, investors, some judges and lawyers, several political figures, and the Mobile Home Commissioners themselves, are enjoying a lucrative profit from this industry.

The Van Buren Township officials who refused to permit a mobile home development within their community, and instead subjected themselves to a jail sentence for contempt of court, should be commended for their defiance of the system that would establish this corruption in their township.

Steven B. Zamiara, Director of the Mobile Home Commission, stated publicly in a House Committee Hearing in Lansing, February 12, 1980, that the soil conditions in Holiday Estates Park are not conducive to the type of set-ups established for the mobile homes in this area.

Further, that Canton Township is solely responsible for the improper inspections and approval of these conditions as they exist today. The obvious problem is the water standing around and under the support footings which are continuously shifting and settling under the weight of the structures.

Now if this is true, and of course we know it is, why hasn't the Mobile Home Commission taken the necessary steps to see that this situation is corrected?

Why are Canton Township Officials trying to pass the buck to the state in regards to the question of who is responsible for this mess?

And finally, why isn't the Attorney General, and the Governor, pursuing an investigation of this extremely important and critical dilemma?

Perhaps if the press could look deeper into these areas of concern we would experience somewhat better response from our entire system of government.

I hope I have been able to express the frustrations many residents have experienced from mistakenly accepting the fast talking, convincing stories of mobile home dealers and park managers, as well as repairmen, inspectors, township officials, Mobile Home Commission and Commerce Department Personnel, the Attorney General, and the Governor of the state. "Let the buyer beware" indeed, but too, "Let the seller beware". Our thanks to Rep. Brown and Sen. Faust for the conscientious effort to help the consumers of this state, and our support for a swift adoption of H.B. 5247.

I was ashamed!

To the Editor:

Just a short time ago we held the district play downs for the Pee Wee division of hockey at our Wayne arena. It was the first time I was ever ashamed to admit that I was from Wayne.

For over a week we had guests from other cities at our arena for hockey, but they did not do one thing about getting the building cleaned up what so ever. I know the city hires school kids to work up there, but after seeing how dirty the place was I'm now wondering what everyone is getting paid for. The bleachers are so dirty underneath they don't look like they've been cleaned out since the arena opened up. I heard guests complaining about not being able to find a clean place on the bleachers to sit down.

After hearing their complaints I know they had good reason because the bleachers are so stuck up with spilled pop and coffee that you can't sit down anywhere without sticking to your seat.

The ledge around the ice arena is so stuck up also that you can't even lean against it to watch the game for fear of sticking to it. If the city is paying the employees to keep the arena clean then why aren't they doing it?

No, they are too busy acting like big shots sitting up in the office or riding a few little boys that might be playing together over by the exit doors. I have sat and watched certain ones sit up in the bleachers and watch a complete hockey game.

I remember the day they opened up our arena to the public and how good I felt to see what my tax money is going for. Our arena is one of the newest ones around, but it's one of the dirtiest ones I've seen in a long time. I only wish that by writing this letter that maybe it would open a few eyes to what's going on. Thanks for letting me get this off my chest, but I bet you don't publish this letter.

Helping out

To the Editor:

I'm Vern Herron, Shop Chairman at the Chrysler Corporation Brownstown Parts Depot. Mike Kasper, who lost his three children and mobile trailer in Sumpter Township due to a fire on Monday, February 4, 1980, is an employee at this plant.

U.A.W. Local 1248 is making an effort to raise some money from public donations to help Mike through this tragedy. This is the third house fire in three years for Mike and I need not say, a very big expense.

Thank you

To the Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank two City of Inkster employees, J. Polk and his partner, whose name I didn't catch.

They were kind enough to take time from their busy schedule to change a flat tire for me. I was on my way to work and because of them, I was only 5 minutes late.

So, again, thank you, J. Polk and partner!

Ask Carol Premo

Is she jumping to conclusions?

By CAROL PREMIO, C.S.W.

Dear Carol,
I just moved into the Belleville area and know very few people. A woman who lives down the hall has been very friendly and that is my problem. This will sound dumb and narrow I am afraid, but it is necessary to ask.
The woman down the hall is friendly and nice but looks kind of masculine and that worries me. I don't know much about her or why she is interested in me.

Dear Needs,
I will answer it by agreeing with you that it sounds very narrow. It never fails to amaze me how totally involved people are with other people's looks. Last week I received a letter from a guy who "loved" a woman because she was cute and people said they made a "cute couple." Now you fear a friendly woman because she is masculine. If the implication is that she is gay because she is masculine, not all lesbians are masculine by a long shot.
She will probably survive without your friendship. Maybe she will find a person who likes friendliness and gets to know her before she judges her sexuality.

Dear Carol,
I never really had to talk or write to anyone about a problem. But here's one that bothers me a lot. There is this girl who I've known for three years, but I never really talked to her that much. I think she is a very sweet and pretty girl. So I decided to talk with her. Then a few days later I asked her to a Valentine's party at the church we both attend, and she accepted my offer.
I am a good looking guy. I'm 22 and she's 21. She comes from a strict religious family. Carol, my problem is that there is a guy who dresses like a hobo, has long hair and smells like tobacco and

Dear Lonely,
Regardless of whether or not you make a "cute couple," it does not appear that you will be coupled with her. It does sound as if she cares for this other man and there is probably nothing you or anyone can do about it. So far as how he looks, people do not always use that as the main criterion in determining who they care about. (Thank goodness—get a load of the picture next to my name.)
And so, Lonely for girls, the best way to heal the wounded heart or ego is to supply it with someone else. Get out and meet more women and look for someone who can care for you. There's a nice aspect of being in your early twenties in that there are a lot of you. Just keep in mind that it takes two and good luck.

You are invited to ask Carol about a problem or discuss a solution by mailing your letter to: Carol Premo, Associated Newspapers, 47818 W. Huron River Drive, Belleville, Mich. 48111.

Granny gets in on a strange game

By JIM BRADLEY

Basketball is reaching its peak this week as everyone goes wild during "March Madness" when all high school teams play for the state championship.

It was with this thought in mind that I went to the mailbox the other day and noticed a letter addressed to me. My relative, Granny Two-shoes, older sister of Goody, had taken time to write.

I opened the envelope and read:
Dear Grandson,

I had quite an exciting time last night. You know how far our younger generation has slipped. Well, last night I saw lights on at the high school and decided to find out for myself how bad things are.

I got the shock of my life. After lacing my high button shoes and turning up my hearing aid, I took a slug of Geritol and headed for the high school.

Well, grandson, things were off to a bad start. The gym was already packed with an unruly sort of people and I could barely squeeze in. First thing I saw were girls clad in their younger sister's short dresses yelling for the people to fight. These six or eight girls came running onto the floor screaming, "Fight, Fight, Fight!" And you know how I abhor violence, especially when it concerns me.

Then these two men in pajama tops came running onto the floor with whistles in their mouths. That was bad enough, but then some skinny, underfed boys came running onto the floor in their undershirts and bright-colored Bee-vee-dees. I blushed.

Everyone was screaming at one another and I figured if there was going to be a riot or fight, it was better to have it inside than out on the street. Well, everyone sat down and the man in the pajama top tossed the ball in the air and that started the awfullest rig-a-marole you ever saw.

There were five skinny boys in blue undershirts and five in white undershirts. And the boys were selfish, too. The boys in blue never threw the ball to the boys in white. Is that what they're teaching our kids in school today? The ones out on the floor were clumsy because they dropped the ball every step they took, and they only used one hand. Personally, I've always said, "Two hands for beginners!"

The best I could figure out, they were trying to throw the big orange ball into that hole with the fish net around it and the barn siding behind it. The taller boys would get the ball off the barn siding behind the fish net and give it to the shorter kids to bounce. (I thought that was nice of them.)

But the stingy man in pajamas would blow his whistle and take the ball away. Then a boy would liquor, and yet she lets him sit by her and hold her hand. I'll offer to pick her up for church and she says "no," but she'll let this hippie type pick her up. I almost broke out crying when I saw this. Worst of all, she won't even sit by me, but will go right to him. What burns me up is that her parents approve of him. I like her so much that I could tell her "I love you." What should I do now? Can you help me?

P.S. People say "we make a cute couple."

A bridge we all must cross

By JOYCE HAGELTHORN

I was fourteen years old when I walked over the railroad bridge spanning Boise River.

It was a hot July day and all of the kids in the neighborhood, bored with the things we had been doing all summer, hiked out to Canyon Hill, overlooking Boise River and the valley surrounding it. We carried sandwiches and after climbing the hill and leaping over the jutting rocks, exploring the caves, we sat down on a grassy spot near the railroad bridge.

It had long been established as the badge of great courage to be able to leap from tie-to-tie of the abandoned bridge, high over the swirling waters, and reach the other side. No boy worth his salt had ever refused to do it.

After the sandwiches were gobbled, the boys immediately ran for the bridge, and we girls sat watching them as their skinny legs leaped from tie-to-tie, and their shrieks of laughter poured over the valley.

My cousin reached the other side before any of the others, and then to show his great prowess, immediately turned and skimmed back, flopping himself down on the grass beside me. "Too bad girls can't do it," he said.

"Girls aren't so dumb as to try to do it," my sister replied as she opened her big brown eyes and looked scornfully at him.

"Hah," he retorted. "Girls are clumsy. They can't do what boys can do."

It was like waving a red flag before a bull. I leaped to my feet.

"I can do it," I shouted. "Don't be crazy," my sister yelled. "You're scared of heights."

"Hah," my cousin snorted. "She can't do it anyway. She can't even jump rope without getting all tied up in the rope."

"Don't let her go," my sister shrieked. "She can't even swing high in a swing without getting dizzy."

"She won't try," my cousin howled. "If she falls in she'll drown, 'cause she can't swim. She's just a show-off girl, that's all."

I ignored them. I had been challenged. My heart was pounding in my chest, the sweat was pouring down my face. Everything they had said was true, but all I knew was that if a boy could do it, then I could do it, even if I was a girl.

I put one trembling foot on the railroad tie and gave a little leap. I landed safely. At this point there was only a long drop to a rocky ledge if I should trip. The boys had congregated at the grassy spot I had just left, and they were howling and laughing.

"Look at her. She thinks she can do it. Hope she falls. She's goin' to drown for sure." My sister and the other girls were screaming. "Don't go any further. Stop, stop, STOP!"

Another leap, another safe landing. The sweat was getting in my eyes, and my body was trembling. I didn't dare look down, for now the river was directly beneath.

I clenched my teeth and closed my eyes. Another leap. Another safe landing. I looked ahead. It was interminable. I looked behind. It, too, was an awful distance. I was caught. My knees shook. I got dizzy. The tears were rolling now, and they were salty.

"Hah. She can't go any further. Whatcha goin' to do now?" The boys' voices jarred against me, and in some mysterious way, wiped away the tears and stopped the trembling.

"I'll show them," I growled to myself, and gritting my teeth I made leap after leap until at last I was across the river, and touching the safe, safe ground.

The triumphant shrieks of the girls followed me and even the boys let out a yelp or two. I was filled with pride. I stood there basking in it, until the awful truth dawned on me. To rejoin my friends I would have to again leap over that bridge. I couldn't do it.

"Cross the bridge," the boys yelled. "Come on, cross the bridge back again."

"I've already crossed that old bridge," I shouted back. "Now, I'm going home."

I turned and walked away from the bridge and the river. I had conquered it, but I wasn't going to push my luck. I took me three hours to follow the river back to the highway and trudge on home. Three hot, hot, tiring hours. But somehow I didn't mind. I had shown them that even a girl could do whatever a boy could do.

Years later my cousin confided in me that he never crossed that bridge without being scared to death.

Just goes to show you there isn't that much difference between boys and girls.

Best finish ever in state for Salem wrestlers

Rocks are fourth as 8 area grapplers earn medals

Although Coach Ron Krueger felt that "lady luck" deserted him and his wrestlers at crucial points, Plymouth Salem finished fourth at the Class A state wrestling tournament held over the weekend in Lansing.

It was Salem's best finish ever in the state. They trailed Davidson, which dethroned two-time state champ Temperance Bedford, as the ruler of high school wrestling. Bedford was third.

"I felt we had the opportunity with this team to go all the way," said

Coach Krueger, "however we got some bad breaks and bad calls — but I'm not going to complain because all coaches get them at one time or other."

"But, I really do think if our luck had not deserted us, we could have won it."

Salem's Mark Ross came the closest to finding gold at Lansing Eastern High School among area wrestlers. The sturdy 126-pound senior came within one victory of winning the state title.

Ross forced the issue into an overtime against Davison's Rick Burns who managed to eke out an 8-0 victory over his rival.

Salem also received medal-winning performances from Jim Schultz (105) and Jeff Powers, (185) who finished fourth in their respective weight classes. Jeff Brown, a 112-pounder, and Greg Gatoni, a heavyweight, earned sixth place medals.

Belleville had a pair of medalists in Steve Cook and Rick Winekoff. Cook, an excellent all-around

On way to a cage title

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Sports Editor

Like the saying goes, "it just wasn't in the books" for our old pal at Livonia Franklin.

If anyone had a "sure thing," it appeared that the veteran basketball coach did. With three games left in the season, all his Patriots had to do was win "just one."

And you know what happens to teams that are that close. Let Jim tell you.

"I guess we wanted it too bad," said McIntyre after North Farmington jolted the Livonia quintet 73-52 Friday in the season's Northwest Suburban finale. "We got snake bitten — what can you say? It's sports."

McIntyre and his Patriots surrendered the title to North which wound up with 7-3 league record, one victory more than the Livonians. Ironically, Franklin whipped North the first time around by more than 20 points.

"It's frustrating, isn't it?" Coach McIntyre asked in a rhetorical way. "We were so close and then the world seemed to collapse on us."

One good reason for the tailspin was the departure to the injury list of 6-2 center Jeff Weber who was not only the team's leading scorer and rebounder, but also "the spiritual leader."

Weber suffered an ankle injury about the time things began to fall apart for the Patriots. He's been hobbling ever since.

Will the Patriots be ready for the playoffs?

"I hope so," McIntyre said. "We're playing the winner of the Livonia Churchill-Dearborn Heights Annapolis game Wednesday. And, I believe we got a good shot at either team."

Ah, Jim, but the way fate has been trumping your aces, it's going to be rough — believe me.

John Nibert, Dave Bing and Fred Smiley — all in one night?

Could be if the Inkster Youth Athletic Association can line up a gym and an evening when these three exceptional cagers are available.

The IYA is hoping to raise money to field three Little League football teams this fall and one of the ways they are hoping to reach their goal of $20,000 is by staging benefit games.

Nibert, of course, is well known to local cage fans. He prepped at Wayne Memorial before going on to All-American honors at Albion College.

Bing doesn't need any introduction here. The shooting ex-Piston guard had a brilliant pro career, and Smiley is slowly becoming the Gordie Howe of local basketball.

An All-American at Northwood Institute, Fred is always ready to

Wayne wins volleyball district title

Wayne Memorial earned a right at a shot of the Class A regional title after winning its second consecutive District Volleyball Championship on Saturday.

Coach Doris Busito's Zebras will return to Dearborn on Saturday to take on three teams in their quest for the regional crown and the right to continue in the state tournament.

"We've been playing well as a team," said the Wayne coach. "And, along with excellent team performances, I feel, the key to our success in this tournament was Pam Matyjasik, our No. 1 setter and blocker."

Wayne knocked off Dearborn in the opening match, losing the first set 15-11, then bouncing back to whip the Pioneers 15-5 and 15-6. They went on to beat arch-rival Westland John Glenn for the third time this season, 15-3 and 15-4 and met Dearborn Heights Crestwood in the finale.

Wayne dumped the Chargers in two sets of 15-7.

Earlier in the week Wayne chalked up the Great Lakes 8 Conference championship for the third year in a row.

They're No. 1 in district

Capping an undefeated Great Lakes 8 Conference season, Wayne Memorial returned from Dearborn Saturday boasting its second consecutive Class A district championship. Members of Coach Doris Busito's championship team include Tina Russell (from left), Carol Stocchi, Kelly Reinink, Pam Matyjasik, Deanne Leverenz, Dottie Ali, Debbie Mazurek, Sharon Fontaine, Lynn Underwood and Cheryl Trudell.

Colleges get Glenn grid stars

Bill Dye and Gary Black, who were instrumental in making Westland John Glenn a winner on the gridiron for the past three years, have received college athletic scholarships.

Dye is a 6-3, 210-pound tight end who also saw duty on defense at that position. He received a full-ride scholarship to Wayne State University.

Black, a 6-2, 205-pound two-way tackle, is heading for Hillsdale College upon completion of high school.

"I'm really happy for these fine athletes," said Glenn Coach Chuck Gordon. "They have contributed tremendously to our program and I'm confident they'll do the same in their college programs."

Wayne tankers zero in on league title

Wayne Memorial wrapped up the league dual meet phase of the season with a perfect 7-0 record and stretched its victory string in the Great Lakes to a phenomenal 32 wins over the past three years.

Favored to win its fourth successive conference championship, Coach Jim McPartlin's Zebras will be looking over their shoulders to get a glance at what and how Monroe is doing.

"Monroe definitely has a number of first place swimmers," Coach McPartlin said, "so we're going to have to rely on our depth to win this championship."

Wayne will host the Great Lakes which also includes Fordson, Wyandotte, Taylor Center, Taylor Truman, Riverview and Lincoln Park. The swim preliminaries will get underway at 4 p.m. on Thursday, while the championships will be decided the following evening at 7. There is a $1 and $1.50 admission charge for the preliminaries and finals, respectively.

Meanwhile, Wayne showed Wyandotte why the Zebras deserve to retain the title. The Zebras outlasted the Bruins 96-76 as they swept seven of the 11 events. Steve Matheny accounted for two of those Wayne wins. He turned in a 1:52.6 in winning the 200-yard freestyle. Later, Matheny came back and churned a 5:05.3 to win the 500 freestyle.

Wayne's Korky Whitehead was clocked in 2:16.1 — his best effort — in winning the 200-yard individual medley and Bob Swain is rounding into form on the boards. His 195.65 earned a first place for the Zebras in diving.

Belleville gets its margin of cage revenge

Tigers wrap up league with 82-81 victory over Edsel Ford

Belleville will march into the first round of the Class A district tournament tonight (March 5) at Ypsilanti satisfied that it has avenged a double overtime loss to Dearborn Edsel Ford.

That margin of revenge, though a close 82-81 win, could be the impetus that Coach Tom Niemi's Tigers needs for a successful playoff series.

Belleville takes on Monroe at 7 p.m. after drawing a first round bye. In the nightcap, Temperance Bedford will clash with the winner of Monday night's game between Romulus and Ypsilanti.

"We've improved a lot since the beginning of the season," Niemi commented. "And I feel we have some momentum going for us. We're shooting at a 40 percent or better clip and at the beginning we were hitting between 25 to 20 percent of our shots."

The championship at Ypsilanti will be decided on Friday.

Bruce Rooks sank both ends of a one-and-one to lift Belleville into the lead by three points with 10 seconds left in their rematch with the Edsel Ford T-Birds. Belleville permitted the T-Birds to go the distance to make the last basket.

"We just didn't want to take any chances they could get a three-point play on us," explained Niemi.

It was close most of the way. Belleville was up 16-10 after the first eight minutes but Edsel's 6-5 center, Rodney Armstrong, who pumped in a game high 35 points, led the T-Birds within one of catching their hosts at halftime (35-34).

Belleville pulled away early in the third period as Glenn Johnson and Jeff Patterson got "hot." They received scoring support from Charlie Gardner who came off the bench and scored six of his 15 points in that period.

Johnson wound up with 24 points and Patterson chipped in with 16.

"We needed an emotional game like this," Niemi pointed out. "I managed to play everyone except one of the kids who was injured."

Belleville will take a 3-7 league record into the playoffs.

...and Wayne edges Glenn in finale

Holidays usually conjure up pleasant thoughts. But, for Wayne Coach Steve Schwartz last Christmas must have been a pretty agonizing one.

He can now look back without pain.

Schwartz' cagers avenged their initial loss of the season, a loss sustained from arch-rival, Westland John Glenn during the Christmas tournament, by hanging on to a 55-53 decision last week.

"The difference in this game," Schwartz said, "had to be our bench strength compared to theirs. Thweatt played an outstanding game for Glenn, but when he fouled out, they lost much of their scoring punch."

Wayne enters the Class A District Playoff title race at Plymouth Canton Thursday night at 6:30 p.m., taking on the winner of the Garden

City West and Plymouth Canton game. (West and Canton were scheduled to play Monday night.)

The championship at Canton will be determined at 1:30 p.m. on Saturday.

Schwartz' cagers repaid the Westlanders as they sealed the

Pederson has Wheaton swim record

David Pederson, former All-Area swimmer and a 1979 Franklin High graduate, is improving at record pace at Wheaton College in Wheaton, Illinois.

Pederson distinguished himself at the College Conference of Illinois and Wisconsin championships last week. Swimming in the finals of the 100-yard breaststroke, David finished third in a time of 1:02.76 which shattered Wheaton's freshman record for that event.

Pederson qualified for the NCAA Division III championships which will be held March 20-22 at Washington, Pa. Pederson also finished third in the 200-yard breaststroke (2:18.8). He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Sever Pederson of Westland.

Adler adds two more

Canton guard Scott Adler, improving all year, has been a driving force in the Chiefs' winning their last five games to tie for the Western Six League title this year. Adler (4) scores two of his 13 points as he goes around Churchill's Greg Havermale

(15) while teammates Sean Houle (41) and Brad Westin (33) race up for possible rebound. Canton and Mott tied for the Western Six title with 8-2 records this season after Canton won it outright last year.

Sparks capture own tourney title

The Westland Sparks wheeled and weaved to the Basketball Classic Tournament Championship after sweeping three games last week.

Competition was set up in a round robin style with the team with the best winning percentage being declared the tournament winner.

The host Sparks won their own tournament. The Sparks played perfect basketball with three wins and no losses despite some close games highlighted by a 51-45 win over Nashville, Tenn., and a narrow 2 point victory, 41-39, over Topeka, Kan.

Earlier the Sparks had little problem beating Bordentown, N. J., by a score of 79-37. Nashville's Music City Wheelers came into the tournament ranked 2nd in the country and took runner up honors with a 2 win, 1 loss record.

The touch-luck team of the tournament had to be the Topeka chairman. Despite winning only one game the seventh ranked chairman lost two close games one to Nashville by a score of 53-48 and the other play for a good cause, any cause that includes two baskets, a ball and some players burning up-and-down the floor.

Remember Daran Armstrong, the flashy guard who helped Westland John Glenn win three conference basketball titles? Well, seems Daran is doing his thing for Henry Ford Community College these days.

And last week he was picked as a member of the all-Eastern Conference team. Also named on that team was Herb Burrus, who's playing for Washtenaw Community College.

Burrus starred for Belleville High and, if Belleville Coach Tom Niemi would have listened to this old hacker's advice he would not have had problems he has today.

Told him way back then to "red shirt Herb for four years."

potpourri

BY LEE SMITH
Suburban Living Editor

Two people, who both hold special places in a backlog of pleasant memories, are presently convalescing from recent accidents. And, while tucking in a few extra pleas to You Know Who on their behalf, I've been remembering the parts they played in making my earlier years so nice to look back upon.

One of the twosome has known me since his sister delivered her first baby way back on a June day when HE was a very young man. I call him "Uncle Joe".

Until just a few years ago (and for most of his life) he was in the grocery business. And it was that vocation which allowed me special privileges when I was a little girl (and the only niece.)

And I'm not sure if I actually remember drinking the stuff or if I just THINK I do because my mother recorded it in my babybook, but I always was treated to something I termed "shlokot pop" whenever we visited his store. (Yes, soft drink companies DID produce such a drink called chocolate pop — black in that teepee, wampum era.)

My memorable adventures with Uncle Joe, though, included traveling with him to the Detroit Creamery where he regularly picked up 5-gallon steel containers of ice cream which, I DO recall, always came heavily encased in padded canvas and then securely strapped. The employees at that milk depot always made a fuss over me, set me up on the counter and saw to it that I had the biggest (and eventually the drippiest) ice cream cone in the city. That was really neat!

Another time, when my daddy was in the hospital recovering from surgery, Uncle Joe invited me along on one of his trips to Detroit for supplies and said we'd go to Harper and pay him a surprise visit.

In preparation for the sick-call, my mom let me pick a bouquet of flowers — it had to be late summer because the posies, which I remember so vividly, were zinnias. (THAT is one of my clearest recollections as a 5-year-old; that and the fact they allowed kids into the wards back-then.)

After that long trek (it WAS long, too, the trip taking over an hour in those pre-expressway days) we were told "the patient" had checked out, gone home with a relative. All along we smuggly thought WE were going to surprise my dad and he, in turn, decided to do likewise by arriving home unannounced.

My utter disappointment was magnified by my once-pretty floral tribute, by then a wilted, lifeless clump. But, I've been told, I still had them firmly clutched in my folded five when I returned home. And, you know, now that I really think about it, I bet Uncle Joe was more disappointed than I when our little venture backfired!

The "other man", currently making the convalescent scene, helped make some of my later years — the summers — quite special and provided a fond memory about which all of us (BG, the girls and I) often reminisce.

This kind man — I've called him Harold since my teens when he and my dad shared deer hunting accommodations at Lake Gogebic — made it possible for our family to enjoy a 10-day vacation each July while the girls were growing up. By allowing us the use of his lakeside cottage "uppa north" (as the kids termed our destination), we were assured of a special place to relax and celebrate Susie's birthday each year.

We always felt privileged and mighty lucky to holiday in such super facilities. I especially loved the place since it had more conveniences than I had at home and THAT was the sort of "roughing it" I could dig. What made us appreciate our good fortune even more was learning from Harold's kids that we were the only non-family people allowed the rental of what we considered "paradise" (uppa-north, of course.)

Uncle Joe, who fell and broke his hip back in November, is scheduled for a re-run in surgery next week. Harold, the victim of a freak accident in January, is now on the mend at Chelsea Hospital's burn center. Hurry and get well now, you two ... hear?

According to those in the know — and its some long-named branch of the government, naturally, the number of babies expected to be born on "leap year day," Feb. 29, this year, was 9,036. This came from Warren Pierce (Pearce?) and he rattled that statistical bureau off so fast I couldn't catch it. But, then, who cares ...

The most recent in my late evening (non-TV) pastimes was a non-fiction work, "Pity the Poor Rich," by Bert Greene in collaboration with Phillip S. Schulz. This was a really off-beat book for me but the reviews intrigued me and I found it to be unusual and interesting reading (although it didn't go into depth as I'd hoped it would.)

The author, once caterer to the richest of the rich, carves the upper crust into three categories: Poor-rich, Middle-class-rich and Really-really rich!

Good examples of the Poor-rich are Johnny Carson and Farrah Fawcett (making a couple million or so a year but where tomorrow?) With inflation, Greene purports, it takes about $50 to $75 million in one's personal bank account just to be considered one of the Middle-classed-moneyed. To make the Really-really rich plateau, the minimum requirement is $200,000,000.

How do the rich make do? This is a handbook of their very survival in these "perilous times."

Chapters, provocatively titled, include: Who Are They? Where Do They Live? How Much Does It Cost to Live That Way? Where Do They Go to Keep Ahead of the Middle Class? Where and Why Do They Work? What Do They Eat? (And this segment is the shocker! As one domestic Greene interviewed put it, "The difference between them and us'ns? (sic) We eats better!" And you'll consider yourself a gourmand by the time you complete the food revelations.)

And though he tells where they purchase their high-priced baubles, where they vacation, which psychiatrists they see, Greene very adeptly avoids gossip. Although he lets it be known the "rich" are a veddy, veddy tight-wad bunch and are among the most prestigious freeloaders, he never mentions WHO left him holding the tab.

You might like this one for a change in pace!

Ham and vegetable chowder

Nothing quite relieves the grayness of the midwinter season as does a tureen of hearty soup. Best of all, the combination of ingredients that are virtually kitchen staples makes this dish especially appealing to budgets that may be somewhat strained at this time of the year.

Ham and Vegetable Chowder is practically a meal-in-a-bowl, designed to serve six. One packet of Good Seasons buttermilk farm style salad dressing mix provides all of the seasonings you'll need for this ham and vegetable soup. Once you've prepared the meat and vegetables, it takes less than one-half hour to bring the chowder from range to table. Serve it with fruit, cheese and crackers, a beverage — and cheers to a winter day!

Ham and Vegetable Chowder

2-1/2 cups diced cooked ham (about 1 pound)
2 medium onions, chopped (1 cup)

2 medium potatoes, sliced (2 cups)
2 medium carrots, sliced (two third cup)
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
2 cups water
1 envelope buttermilk Good Seasons salad dressing mix
2 cups milk

Saute ham, onions, potatoes and carrots in butter in large skillet until vegetable are tender, about 6 minutes. Add water. Bring to boil; reduce heat, cover and simmer for 15 minutes.

Meanwhile, combine salad dressing mix and milk, mixing thoroughly. Stir into ham and vegetables. Bring to boil; reduce heat, cover and simmer for 5 minutes. Sprinkle with chopped parsley, if desired. Makes 6-1/2 cups or 6 servings.

Note: Chowder may be frozen. To thaw, place in saucepan and heat over low heat, stirring constantly.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM K. MOORE

Moore-Gollwitzer wed

New Zealand honeymoon follows chapel ceremony

A three-week honeymoon in New Zealand followed the recent marriage of Brenda Gollwitzer of El Granada, Calif. and William Kirk Moore of San Francisco.

Arrangements of white and yellow daisies and mums adorned the altar of Robert Louis Stevenson Chapel in Pebble Beach as the young couple exchanged nuptial vows and wedding bands before some 130 assembled relatives and friends.

The five o'clock ceremony on Jan. 5 joined the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Elton Gollwitzer of 44345 Harmony Lane, Belleville, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bryan Moore of La Canada, Calif. in holy matrimony.

Theodore Frost and Al Firestone provided guitar and vocal music, respectively, for the occasion.

Escorted to the sanctuary by her father, Brenda appeared in a white satin crepe gown designed with a slim, front-slit skirt, a V-neckline with a soft stand-away collar and long sleeves.

In lieu of a veil she had yellow and white daisies woven into her hair to match those arranged in her cascade bridal bouquet which was accented with stephanotis and baby's breath.

Gretchen Firestone traveled to the West Coast from Ypsilanti to be her sister's honor attendant. Nadine Wade, a college friend from San Francisco; Jeanne Boyce, another college friend from Mill Valley, Calif.; and Mary Kathleen Moore, the bridegroom's sister from San Francisco, completed the bridal coterie.

The quartet was gowned in electric blue, toe-touching frocks of pure Hong Kong silk. Fashioned with spaghetti-strap draped necklines, the dresses featured little companion jackets with self belts and long sleeves.

The bridegroom chose his fraternity brother, Thomas Anawalt of Half Moon Bay, Calif., to serve as best man. Groomsmen included Wyman Smith of Napa, Calif., another fraternity brother, and Bryan Moore of Oslo, Norway and Michael Moore of San Francisco, both brothers of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Gollwitzer selected for her daughter's wedding a gown of emerald green Granada crepe de chine while the bridegroom's mother chose to wear a sea green chiffon print. Both were honored with corsages of yellow and white roses.

The Beach and Tennis Club at Pebble Beach was the setting for the reception which followed. The 130 guests present were from Norway, England, Hawaii, New York, Colorado, Kentucky, Washington, D.C., Michigan and the state of California.

The new Mrs. Moore graduated from Belleville High School and San Francisco State University where she earned her bachelor of arts degree in German. Her husband, an alumnus of La Canada High School, holds a bachelor of arts degree in fine arts from the University of Colorado where he affiliated with Phi Delta Theta fraternity. The newlyweds, both employees of Pan American Airlines out of San Francisco, are now making their home in El Granada, Calif.

The bridegroom's parents played host at the rehearsal dinner held at the Golden Buddha in Carmel.

Hidenfelter speaks on wills at February Home Arts meet

Marilyn Prill, president, welcomed 14 member and one guest, Helen White, to the February meeting of the Home Arts Club held in the home economics room at North Junior High School.

Lucille Bravatto introduced Belleville attorney William Hidenfelter, guest speaker for the evening, who talked about wills and other legal matters. He prefaced his lecture by telling about growing up in the community and graduating from Albion College in 1977.

Many interesting facts, including the purpose and necessity of having a will, were explained. Many legal difficulties, Hidenfelter said, are avoided and the person's express wishes carried out exactly as he wants after his death when there is a proper and legal will. He also told some of the problems involved when a person dies intestate (without a will).

Following a question and answer period the group held its business meeting which included a letter from the Superintendent of Van Buren Schools, Dr. Elvin Peets, with information about the proposed millage renewal.

The club program committee has planned for the March meeting a program, "Diet-Protein Without Meat", to be presented by Donette Miller. Guests are welcomed to attend.

Hostesses for the evening, Avis White and Elinor Kenyon, later served cherry topped cheesecake from a table set in keeping with St. Valentine's day.

Hypnosis, psychic phenomena demonstrations set at WCC

John Kolisch, hypnotist and mentalist will make a several hour presentation open to the public at no charge at Washtenaw Community College on March 12.

The presentation is a 2-part one. The first session beginning at noon in Lecture Hall I of the College's Liberal Arts and Sciences Building at 4800 East Huron River Drive will offer an entertaining performance of hypnosis and psychic phenomena. He will demonstrate abilities in extrasensory perception and will perform hypnotic feats involving freely-selected members of the audience," explains Joan Burgins, coordinator in student services at the College.

Beginning at 2:30 that same afternoon Kolisch will offer workshops where participants will have opportunities to examine practical applications of self hypnosis, relaxation-response and other methods of auto-conditioning "to enhance personal awareness, self confidence and motivation," he explains. Participants will be taught principles that "many have applied successfully to overcome tension, stress conditions, to improve learning methods and creative abilities, control weight and stop smoking as well as training in positive self-programming for which the mind is the vital key to greater personal fulfillment," Burgins adds.

Questions regarding Kolisch's appearance at the College should be directed to WCC at (313) 973-3313.

Suburban Living deadline

Thursday - 2 p.m.

About deadlines

As is the case with most human beings, we fail to see what we're not looking for or fail to see what we don't want to see.

In this particular instance we are referring to deadline notices which we attempt to print each week on the Suburban Living pages - boxed in notices that say "Suburban Living Deadline, Thursday, 2 p.m."

There's a reason for this deadline, be assured of that. We have to have time to prepare copy to be taken to the typesetters in our production office in Wayne.

With news coming across our desk and via the telephone throughout the day, there has to be time in which to write, re-write and edit copy as well as to compose heads and cutlines and plan layouts for the next issue.

We ask that you please try to remember that 2 p.m. Thursday is the cut-off time for accepting news which you expect to see in the following week's Suburban Living section. We will gladly take items after the deadline but, more likely than not, they will be a week late appearing in print.

Your cooperation will get your stories printed on time.

"High Crimes and Misdemeanors" by Joanne Greenberg. These stories by the author of "I Never Promised You a Rose Garden" and, most recently, "Founder's Praise", all center on a crime — actual or theoretical — ranging from the serious (extortion, suicide, drug smuggling) to the downright comic. Through all the stories runs a common thread of fantasy, a magical approach to everyday events that readers of Joanne Greenberg's fiction will find at once recognizable and fresh.

"Casebook of the Black Widowers" by Isaac Asimov. Here are 12 mystery stories chronicling the latest cerebral adventures of the Black Widowers. Once again these delightful chauvinists congregate at a monthly banquet to honor an esteemed guest — who must then justify his existence and who always just happens to be confounded by a riddle that tests their wits. All manner of word play is involved. And all manner of crime.

"Suicide and Young People" by Arnold Madison. This book explores youthful suicide in a thorough, responsible and constructive way. Ranging back to ancient times, it examines the attitudes different peoples and religions have taken toward suicide through the ages. It delves into the psychological and emotional factors that drive young people to suicide. It confronts the high suicide rates among U. S. minority youth and seeks to find the reasons.

"Man with Wings" by Edward Jablonski. A comprehensive pictorial history of man's conquest of the air, this book chronicles the lives and accomplishments of men and women who, throughout the centuries, stamped their personalities onto the world of flight. Their unending array of eccentric and colorful vehicles complimented the equally flamboyant personalities of their rectors.

'Y' needs help

The YWCA of Western Wayne County is in need of volunteers to help in two major programs.

The Westland Women's Employment Center, a YWCA-sponsored free job placement program for women, needs volunteers who wish to be trained as peer counselors. The center also is in need of typists and individuals who are interested in telephoning prospective employers and clients.

The YWCA also has a program to aid in the rehabilitation of female inmates at the Wayne County Jail Annex at Eloise. Many volunteers are needed. Women with skills in empathy training, group leadership or talents in crafts, sewing, knitting and crocheting can find satisfaction with volunteers work in this program, a YW spokesperson said.

For further information about the programs or to volunteer, contact Kathy Shefferly or Leslie Frederick at 561-4110.

Lawn and garden guide for March

No matter whether March comes in like a lion or a lamb — in either case, it brings the promise of another spring. It also means that it's time for Michigan State University horticulturists to suggest the following lawn and garden chores:

- Fertilize shrubs, trees and perennials as they begin to grow.
- Transplant small ornamental trees and shrubs before they leaf out. If you want to move a large tree, call your local nursery or landscaping service. It takes know-how and proper equipment to do the job safely and efficiently.
- Prune grape vines, fruit trees and woody landscape plants, especially those that have suffered winter damage. Whenever possible, avoid pruning springflowering shrubs now. This would remove the buds for this year's flowers.
- Prune the old fruit canes of red raspberries and thin out the weaker new canes. Shorten self-supporting plants to about 4½ feet.
- Order or select trees and shrubs for spring planting.
- Repair snow or ice damage to evergreens like boxwood, juniper and yew. Remove broken branches and stake or support plants and branches as needed.
- Remove sunscreens from evergreens and dismantle other plant protectors as weather permits.
- Uncover, prune and fertilize established roses in late March. Be sure to remove all winter-damaged canes and any that look diseased or insect-infested.
- Check stored bulbs and tubers again and discard any showing signs of rot, mold or disease.
- Bring bulbs potted in November out of cold storage for forcing.
- Late this month, pot up tuberous begonias.
- Keep amaryllis foliage growing to build up the bulb for next year's flowers.
- Check houseplants for overcrowding and other problems. Divide and repot any plants that need it, and treat or discard any showing signs of insect or disease problems.
- Remove part of the mulch from strawberry plants. Be ready to recover them in case of a cold snap or hard frost.
- Prepare the soil for flower beds, garden plots and borders as soon as it's dry enough to work. (If a handful of soil sticks together when you squeeze it, it's still too wet.) Spade or till in compost or other organic material where it's needed to improve soil texture, and add fertilizer as indicated by a soil test.
- Start seeds of cool-weather vegetables indoors this month. These include cabbage, Brussels sprouts, broccoli, cauliflower and spinach. Radishes, onions, lettuce and spinach can also be planted outdoors in late March if the soil is thawed and workable.
- Plant seeds of pansy and English daisy outdoors, and seeds of dusty miller, flower tobacco, petunia, salvia, verbena, annual mum, China aster, Forget-me-not, portulaca, French marigold, sweet alyssum, salpiglossis, garden balsam, annual phlox and gaillardia indoors for transplanting outdoors in May. For healthy, compact plants, make sure that seedlings spend 12 to 16 hours a day under fluorescent lights.

- If you had a crabgrass problem last year, apply preemergent crabgrass controls before forsythia finishes flowering. This should be in late March or early April.
- Hold off fertilizing bluegrass lawns until late May, especially if you applied a complete fertilizer or nitrogen in late fall. Bluegrass varieties that are susceptible to Fusarium blight are more likely to develop the disease if

World Day of Prayer slated for March 7

"Responsible Freedom" is the theme for World Day of Prayer set for March 7. The women of the United Presbyterian, First United Methodist, St. Anthony's and Trinity Episcopal Churches in Belleville will hold a service at the Martha-Mary Chapel of the Belleville United Presbyterian Church, 11900 Belleville Road, at 1 p.m. The public is cordially invited to join in the service and a tea immediately following. A nursery will be provided during the service.

Women in this country have been celebrating a national day of prayer since 1887. This year, people in more than 150 countries and islands around the world will gather in prayerful consideration of "Responsible Freedom." Church Women United is the official sponsor of World Day of Prayer in the United States.

Each year, women of a different country are asked to write the World Day of Prayer service based on themes chosen by the International Committee for World Day of Prayer.

The Christian women of Thailand have written this year's service, thanking "our sisters in Africa for the World Day of Prayer program for 1979 which reminded us of our need for 'spiritual growth.'" The Thai women encourage their sisters and brothers around the world "to continue to grow in the Spirit; that is, to love Jesus Christ more and to live closer to him. Because he loves us and is united to us, we are able to covenant with others. To covenant with others means to love, to be concerned, to be responsible."

As people around the world form a chain of prayer on March 7, the words of Kenneth Kaunda, president of Zambia, to the International Committee for World Day of Prayer in April 1978 point up the importance of this historic day: "clearly if there is any one act that binds us together ... it is prayer — our open acknowledgement of the overwhelming greatness of God to whom we seek to be united and our appeal to God for peace among ourselves, not in the future, but now."

Start begonias now

You can turn a shady, somewhat damp spot in your garden from a problem to an opportunity with tuberous begonias.

Michigan State University horticulturists advise potting up tubers in March for June flowers. They note that tuberous begonias can also be grown from seed but point out that flowers take much longer when you start with seed. To get flowers in June, you have to sow seeds in January.

Place tubers round end down and three to four inches apart in moist vermiculite, peat or sphagnum moss. The tops should be about a half-inch below the surface. Place containers where they'll be exposed to temperatures around 70 degrees F and indirect sunlight. Water sparingly — just enough to keep the medium damp. Too much water will rot the tubers.

After four or five weeks, transplant tubers into five- or six-inch pots. Place a layer of coarse drainage material in the bottom of the pots. Then fill them with a soil mixture made of one part sterile sandy loam soil, one part well rotted manure or peat moss, and one part well rotted compost. Mix one heaping teaspoon of superphosphate fertilizer (0-20-0) into each gallon of soil. Place the pots near an east window or under artificial light. Avoid placing them in direct sunlight or exposing them to temperatures below 60 degrees F. A night minimum of 65 degrees is best.

After the danger of frost is past, transplant the begonias into the garden. A site with a north exposure is best. Ideally, begonias should get some sun in the morning and afternoon but be shaded from full sun most of the day. Full shade all day will make begonias grow tall and leggy.

Plant the tubers at the same depth they were growing in the pots. Regular watering and fertilizing every two weeks should keep the plants flowering all summer. Use one teaspoon of 10-10-10 per gallon of water. Soak the soil around the plants with this solution, but avoid splashing it on the foliage. Wash any splashes off the leaves at once.

When the tops are injured by frost in the fall, cut the stems off at the soil line. Dig tubers carefully to avoid damaging them.

Grissoms welcome baby girl

"Stephanie Ann" is the title chosen for the new daughter born Jan. 26 to Charles and Linda Grissom of 19361 Haggerty Rd., Belleville. Making her debut at 2:40 p.m. at Detroit's Hutzel Hospital, the young lady weighed in at 11 lbs., 7 ozs. and measured 22 inches.

The couple's first child, she is the new granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Delmar Grissom of Hardy, Ark. and Jean Hall of Belleville.

Three proud great-grandmothers, adding Stephanie to their family trees, are Mrs. Anastasia Sobolowski of Belleville, Mrs. Edith Miller of St. Louis, Mo. and Mrs. Mary Grissom of Piggott, Ark.

NEW VOTERS
There are about 31,000,000 Americans potentially qualified to vote for the first time in this fall's election, some by virtue of the lowering of the voting age, others by the Voting Rights Act Amendments of 1970, plus those 21 to 24 year olds who have become eligible since the last presidential election. People are almost unanimous in their approval of Associated Newspapers Classified Ads. That's because they get results they like...cash for good things they no longer need. So when you have something you'd like to sell, (look around now), dial 729-3300 and get fast action.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT EASTERN DISTRICT OF MICHIGAN IN RE: Amendment to Miscellaneous Matter 80- (50)
Local Rule IX (n) (1)
The United States Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit has requested that the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Michigan make "findings of fact with respect to the promulgation of the changes in (Local Rule IX (n) (1)) and the notice thereto. Specific findings concerning the circumstances of the rule change and whether notice was given to the Bar are in order. As this issue may arise on many occasions, an evidentiary hearing should be held and a cross-section of the Eastern District Bar should be allowed to present their views."
It appears that the amendment to Local Rule IX (n) (1) decreasing the time to file a motion for rehearing from 20 days to 10 days was not promptly published in the appropriate newspapers, although the amendment was pasted into all copies of the Local Rules sold and distributed from the Clerk's Office after October 1977. An opportunity is given to members of the Bar to respond in writing to the Clerk not later than Friday, March 7, 1980, RE: Miscellaneous Matter 80- (50) In Re: Amendment to Local Rule IX (n) (1), either in general concerning their awareness of notice or lack of notice of the amendment to Rule IX (n) (1), or in particular, any experience a member of the Bar may have had with the amendment which might be related to lack of adequate notice of the amendment.

Should you buy a house now?

It's not child's play,
trying to decide when
to buy a house in Western Wayne County...especially these days when prices sometimes seem unreal. But when you're drawing up your list of advantages and disadvantages, ask yourself what price you put on the quality of your life. If you wait until next year to buy, you might save a few dollars in loan interest... and you might not. Prices may go down a little...
chances are they won't. But one thing you know for sure, you can never recover the days of enjoyment you and your family could be sharing in the new home you put off buying. So, what's more important? Only you can decide what's best for you. But if you're deciding about a new home,
the thousands of listings
every day in Associated Newspapers Classified can help make your decision easier.

With anniversary 'super'

Ice show says 'let's celebrate'

This will be a memorable year for Ice Capades, which for its 40th anniversary "super show" has cooked up a special revue, "Let's Celebrate." Called one of its most exciting shows ever, the "super show" is a musical journey from the era of Tin Pan Alley to the magic and glitter of today's disco.

Ice Capades will open its "super show" for 10 performances March 18 at the Joe Louis Arena in Detroit.

To get the exciting party off to a rousing start, skaters glide and dance to America's newest fascination in the opening production "Disco Dynamite." Dressed in glittering pink and silver capes, the talented Corps de Ballet perform the most energetic and impressive dancing number in Ice Capades history. The solos of Sissy Moody and Michael Shinniman contrast with the hilarious antics of Mac and Barrickman, posing as two "Super Fools."

Children of all ages will be delightfully spellbound as their favorite fantasy characters come to life in "The Magic Machine." Meet a Mad Professor, magically transforming Raggedy Ann and Andy dolls into real, live people. Yogi Bear, Scooby-Doo, Captain Caveman and others watch as other toys come tumbling onto the ice and skate away.

Amid the familiar pulsating rhythms of Latin America, Ice Capades salutes to the south in "Latin Fire." It is a production of Flamenco dancing and features solo by Canadian Men's Champion, Ron Shaver. A festival follows with the famous Ice Capades flying ballet soaring 35 feet above the ice in aerial acrobatics. Sarah Kawahara presents her innovation interpretation in "El Fuego." The festival ends with Silver Medalists Gail and Frank showcasing their winning style in a lively exhibition of skating talent.

Fans of George Gershwin, Irving Berlin and George M. Cohan will love the tribute to historical tunes in "Music A La Carte." From the spirited U.S. Freestyle Champion Wendy Burge skating to Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" to adagio artists Don and Charlene breezing to the tune of "Porgy and Bess," audiences will be enthralled. The talented Fentons keep up the pace with a quick stepping tap dance and the incredible David Kirby skates an outstanding solo to the music of the famous Tin Pan Alley.

This year marks the 100th anniversary of the light bulb, and the company hits the ice for an "incredible end" to an "unforgettable experience" with plumed headdresses, scintillating costumes, and radiant lighting effects combining to create shimmering flashes of light and sound in a magnificent finale, "Centennial of Light."

Also highlighting our new show is "the greatest clown on ice," Freddie Trenkler, who also is celebrating his 40th year with Ice Capades.

Ticket prices are $5, $6, $7 and $8; all seats are reserved. Children 14 and under and senior citizens will receive $2 off at the 7:30 p.m. performances Wednesday and Thursday, at 4 p.m. Friday and at the Saturday performances at 12 and 4 p.m.

Tickets are available at Cobo Arena Box Office, Windsor Arena, all J.L. Hudson's and Randolph Travel and Tours - Birmingham. Handicap facilities are available, for further information please call 962-2000.

Institute marks St. Patrick's Day

A bit of the old sod will be brought to the International Institute on March 9 from 2 to 5 p.m. for a pre-St. Patrick's Day Celebration, called an Irish Fleadh. The Institute is located at 111 E. Kirby, one block east of Woodward in Detroit's Cultural Center.

Fleadh is the Gaelic word for celebration and the afternoon program is the second in a series of monthly Ethnic Sundays, presented by The International Institute. A different country's cultural life is presented each month with the accent on authenticity.

The Irish Fleadh will feature Jim Perkins playing the dulcimer and penny whistle, historic Irish musical instruments and Terence and Branden McKinney playing the Irish pipes.

Tim O'Hare's Irish Dancers, a troupe of children ages 4 through 18, will perform traditional Irish dances. Nora Cassidy's Irish dancers also will be featured.

Irish foods will be offered including Irish potato bread and sausage, Irish soda bread and high tea brack (a cake.) Irish coffee also will be available. There will be displays of Belleek China, Irish history books and narrated travel slides of Ireland.

The program will be presented with the help of the Gaelic League of Detroit.

Others participating in the program are Jack Derrig of Dearborn's Irish Import Store, Nate Morgan Sociology professor at Wayne State University, Ed Marmon of the Wayne-Westland Community Schools' Gaelic Library.

The afternoon including refreshments other than the Irish coffee costs $5. Advance reservations are required. Checks in the amount of $5 should be made payable to The International Institute and mailed to 111 East Kirby, Detroit, Michigan 48202, no later than March 3.

For additional information call The International Institute at 871-8600.

Attic Theatre to stage swashbuckler, 'Bess'

A swashbuckling tale of piracy and revenge, "Bloody Bess", will open at 8 p.m. at the Attic Theatre in Detroit. The show will feature members of the Attic Company.

"Bloody Bess" is the classic pirate tale, done 1930's movie style with plundered treasure and fierce sword-fighting pirates. It is set in the 1800s on Tobago, where Bess's father is governor. When the island is overtaken and her father murdered, Bess becomes the most wanted pirate on the seven seas.

Martin LePlatney, director of the production, conducted stage combat workshop for several weeks preceding rehearsals to guarantee "very believable" fight scenes.

"The play is a tribute to all pirate films," he said. "It will be very realistic and exciting to watch...it'll be good, fun entertainment."

LaPlatney is a founding member of Seattle's Empty Space Theatre, and he holds a certificate of proficiency from the prestigious Society of British Fight Directors. He recently acted as stunt coach and appeared in "The Crucifer of Blood" on Broadway and off-Broadway in the "Passion of Dracula".

Featured in the cast will be most of the company members—Margaret Heinze in the title role of Bess, Lavinia Moyer as the fierce lady pirate Annie Bailey, Robert Wright, Ramon Ramos, Joe Zubrick, David Pruett, Clifton Shaw.

"Bloody Bess" will run through April 26, with performances at 8 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Sunday and at 6 and 9 p.m. Saturday. Ticket information and reservations call 963-7789.

The theatre is located at 525 E. Lafayette, Detroit.

In 2-weekend performances

Bonstelle Theatre presents 'Detective Story'

"Detective Story," a drama by famed American playwright Sidney Kingsley, will open at the Bonstelle Theatre on March 7 at 8:30 p.m. for a 2-weekend run. Performances are scheduled for Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 p.m. with Sunday matinees at 2 p.m. through March 16.

"Detective Story" realistically depicts the events in a New York police precinct headquarters during a single day. The main story deals with Jim McCleod, an overzealous police detective whose adherence to a prescribed morality proves troublesome to him in both his professional and personal life. The plot also follows the stories of the many people from all walks of life who arrive at the police station for various reasons, and whose stories add humor and reality to the play.

In "Detective Story" Kingsley demonstrates his talent for creating naturalistic situations and characters within a framework which today may be regarded as a documentary-like look at the problems of the post-war era in America.

"Detective Story" is directed by Martin Molson, with costumes by Marilyn Renaud, settings by Ed Kruis and lighting by George deFalussy. Heading the cast are Richard Warren and Mary Eldridge as Detective and Mary McCleod, Jennifer Roberts, David A. Preuss and Gary Righettini. Also in the cast are Ben E. Dean, Dale M. Franks, Robert Stormont, Alan Ribant and Maureen Remisiewicz.

At the university's Studio Theatre (downstairs at the Hilberry Theatre, "Mulatto," by black poet, novelist, playwright Langston Hughes, will open for a 2-week run at 8:30 p.m. March 5. Performances will be at 8:30 p.m. March 5-8 and 12-12 and at 4 p.m. March 13.

"Mulatto" was the first professionally produced play for Hughes. Prior to Lorraine Hansberry's "A Raisin in the Sun," it was the longest running Broadway play by a black author. It also was the basis for Hughes' libretto of "The Barrier," a popular opera with musical score by Jan Meyerwitz.

"Mulatto" concerns the problems of blacks in a troubled South during the 1930s. The story deals with bigotry and prejudice within a racially mixed family, and centers around the attempts of Robert Lewis, the illegitimate son of a Southern plantation owner, Col. Thomas Norwood, and his black mistress, Cora Lewis, to come to grips with his heritage.

Anthony Lucas will portray Robert Lewis, with Dennis Wrosch as the Colonel and Darlene L. French as Cora. Also in the cast are Edward M. Nahhat, Vance Dennard, Daniel Guzman, Augustus Williamson, Robert Cafagna and Tamara M. Gagnon.

The production is directed by Von Washington, with set design by Vikte Jankus and costumes by Anne-Marie Wright.

For tickets for both plays and further information contact the WSU Theater box office, Cass and Hancock, Detroit 48202, or call 577-2972.

"Detective Story," a documentary-like look at the events in a New York police station on the post-war era, opens at the Bonstelle Theatre Friday for a 2-weekend run. Performances are scheduled for March 7-8, 14 and 15 at 8:30 p.m. and at 2 p.m. March 9 and 16. Appearing in the production are Dale M. Franks (from left), David Preuss and Jennifer Roberts, who play leading roles in the play. For tickets and additional information contact the Wayne State University theatre box office at 577-2972.

Organ Society presents Ralston

The Motor City Theatre Organ Society Inc. will present theatre organist Bob Ralston, as featured on the Lawrence Welk Show, at the console of the vintage Barton theatre pipe organ in the Royal Oak Theater, 318 W. Fourth St. at Washington in Royal Oak, at 8 p.m. March 15 and 2 p.m. March 16.

Tickets for the concerts are available at $7, $6 and $5 and are reserved seating. They may be ordered by mail by writing to the Redford Theatre, 17360 Lahser Road, Detroit 48219. A check or money order payable to MC-TOS and a self-addressed, stamped envelope should be enclosed.

"You know, it was really a thrill," Akins later told his sidekick, Mills Watson (who plays Deputy Perkins). "Here this nice guy flies all the way out here to honor me. It meant an awful lot to me. But I was really sad that my dad couldn't have lived to see this day. I think the badge in his memory touched me more than the honor for me. He would have been tickled."

Hearing that Chief Holiday, who was accompanied by his wife and his wide-eyed 10-year-old daughter, Reagan, was without a car, the affable star lent them his car for the entire time they were in Los Angeles.

"Well, why not?" Akins laughed. "I knew he wouldn't be breaking any laws! Besides, that was an awfully nice thing Bedford did for me!"

MONDAY

03/10/80

8:30 A.M.
20 - MOVIE: 'Guerillas in Pink Lace' Five showgirls

ARIES March 21-April 20

The 9th is the most noteworthy day of the week. After that don't push yourself or any projects. Instead, re-evaluate your progress and make plans to correct or maintain your speed.

TAURUS April 21-May 21

You start the week off slowly, almost bad, but then immediately pick up with tremendous happenings and news! Set this weekend aside early in the week for celebrating and romance.

GEMINI May 22-June 21

You have to keep on your toes this week, it runs hot and cold. When you hit a bad day, it's really bad, but then the good days are exceptional. Be prepared for anything.

CANCER June 22-July 23

Work on a pet project early in the week and don't plan on anything after Wednesday. You still must exert control over your temper, damage could be done that will never be undone.

LEO July 24-August 23

The 9th is excellent for you, shine brightly! Lay low the rest of the week when your faults and failures come to others too easily! Don't criticize or it comes back on you.

VIRGO August 24-Sept. 23

This is a low key week that finds you between good and bad cycles. You can get a lot of research done that you've been talking about and putting off. This is the week to plan.

LIBRA Sept. 24-Oct. 23

Outside the home there is a lot of action and confusion this week. Inside, you find the relaxation you need. Keep these places and feelings separate in order to keep harmony.

SCORPIO Oct. 24-Nov. 22

When you are corrected this week, rather than take offense, be grateful that someone cares enough to bother! Your friends will try to help you avoid mistakes.

SAGITTARIUS Nov. 23-Dec. 21

Don't ask for the pressures of any issue without the support and backing of another (loved one?). Give things time to work out, don't try to work miracles by yourself.

CAPRICORN Dec. 22-Jan. 20

You have an excellent week here to work on projects that have only been dreams. Expand your horizons, try new things, and don't have so little confidence in yourself.

AQUARIUS Jan 21-Feb. 19

Take it easy the first few days of this week and allow things to happen at the speed that is natural. Don't push yourself or your achievements. The weekend is highlighted.

PISCES Feb. 20-March 20

This week is a full in a hectic and confusing month for you. Take every opportunity to reassure loved ones that you are still with them and for them. Examine your fears and be rid of them.

SOAP OPERA WEEK

Off-camera soapsters juggle career moves

By NANCY M. REICHARDT

HOLLYWOOD — The big news on the West Coast is that Elizabeth Harrower has been replaced as head writer on "Days of Our Lives." Taking up the "DOOL" writing chores will be Nina Laemmle. The English writer has been an executive story consultant for such films as "Born Free" and "Sara," as well as "Three for the Road." This is her first attempt at head-writing a soap opera. Ms. Laemmle's storylines are slated to begin appearing this month. Another executive exit was made by Wes Kenny; Al Rabin will take over the show's executive producer spot.

David O'Brien (Steve Aldrich) from "The Doctors" was all set to appear in the Paper Mill Playhouse production of "Winslow Boy" when the theater burned to the ground while the company was in Palm Beach rehearsing for their opening. However, David was thrilled when actress Claire Trevor approached him and said how much she enjoyed watching "TD" every day. As a result of that meeting Miss Trevor was invited to spend a day on the set, which she enthusiastically accepted, much to the delight of the show's cast.

Speaking of "TD," Nicholas Walker (Brad Huntington) is appearing in New York in the Circle In The Square theater production of "Major Barbara" when he's not emoting on the small screen in his new role. Nicholas, who was born in Bogota, Colombia, began his acting career at the age of 13. On stage the actor portrays a 25-year-old proper English boy, something that's right up his alley, since Nicholas has spent a lot of time in England where his parents still reside.

ASK ME ABOUT TV

By VAL CAREW

BO'S BEAU - I have a question about the movie "Orca," which I saw on TV. My friends won't believe me when I tell them the name of the girl who had a leg chewed off. I think she is great, but I'm not giving you a clue about her identity. You tell me who she is. - Bill K., Lubbock, Texas

Well, I know who you think she is and you're right. It was Bo Derek, now a super sexpot, thanks to the hit film "10." Bet your friends will be impressed with you now.

KIEL HAULED - Is Richard Kiel, who was in "Silver Streak" and "The Longest Yard," still alive? - Bill Frank, Salem, N.H.

Yes, he is. Possibly you are confused because of the death of Ted Cassidy, who, like Kiel, was an extremely tall man who often played menacing monsters.

EMU hosts St. Paul Chamber Orchestra

The first full-time chamber orchestra in the United States, the St. Paul Chamber Orchestra, directed by Dennis Russell Davies, will perform in concert at Eastern Michigan University Monday at 8:30 p.m. in Pease Auditorium.

The 26-member orchestra, one of only a handful of chamber orchestras in the world, has acquired an international reputation for the range of its repertoire and its distinctive style. The orchestra performs great classical chamber music from such composers as Corelli, Vivaldi, Handel, Bach, Haydn, Mozart, Beethoven and Schubert. The orchestra is especially known for championing the music of contemporary composers, particularly Americans, playing and recording many world premieres of works it has commissioned.

The orchestra has toured 23 states, Washington, D. C., Canada, the Netherlands, West Germany, Austria, Eastern Europe and the USSR. During the 1978-79 season, the group performed at the Lincoln Center in New York and at the June 79 Festival Casals in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Under Davies' leadership, the orchestra has gained recognition throughout the United States and Europe for its distinctive style and musical programming. Davies also serves as music director of the Cabrillo Festival in California and as music adviser to the American Composer's Orchestra in New York. This year he will relinquish his post with the St. Paul Chamber Orchestra to become general music director of the Stuttgart Opera.

A native of Toledo, Ohio, Davies began his musical education there studying piano with Berenice MacNab. He continued his education at the Julliard School with Lonny Epstein and Sasha Gorodnitzki and studied conducting with Jorge Mester and Jean Morel. He holds a doctorate degree from the Julliard School where he was a member of the conducting faculty from 1968 to 1973.

Principal conductor of the orchestra is William McGlaughlin, who joined the group in 1975. McGlaughlin, one of a select group of American conductors who trained as a participant in the Exxon Arts Endowment, began his music studies at 14. He earned his bachelor's and master's degrees from Temple University and studied conducting with William Smith and the Philadelphia Orchestra. He has served as a guest conductor of the Minnesota Orchestra, the Pittsburgh Symphony and the Denver Symphony Orchestra.

Tickets for the EMU concert are $5 and $7.50.

Students and senior citizens will be admitted for $4 and $5.50. Tickets are available in Eastern's Office of Campus Life, 117 Goodison Hall, and at Richardson's Michigan Avenue Pharmacy in downtown Ypsilanti.

For further information, call the Office of Campus Life at 487-3045.
